ALLIES SEEK COMPLETE POW ROSTER

FLASHING A SMILE over news that he won all 14 Republican convention delegates in New Hampshire's primary, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower says in Frankfurt, Germany, "Any American who finds so many Americans for him—by golly, he must be proud of it, otherwise he is not an American." Eisenhower is shown in his car on arrival from Paris, to discuss pre-spring maneuvers.

HE'S A FIGHTER WHEN HURT

Foes Of Truman, Taft Rank Them 'Formidable'

WASHINGTON, March 13 — (AP)—Political opponents of President Truman and Sen. Taft still rank them as "still formidable" adversaries despite the New Hampshire presidential primary victories scored by Sen. Kefauver and Gen. Eisenhowr.

Kefauver, Tennessee Democrat upset Truman in Tuesday's Granite State contest. And Eisenhower swept Ohio's Taft on the Republican ticket.

"Say what you want about Harry Truman, he's a fighter, especially when he's hurt—and he'll fight now," said Sen. Aiken (R-Vt).

Aiken is anti-Truman. Has not announced his choice for the GOP presidential nomination.

The Vermonter predicted last month Kefauver would "beat the tar" out of Truman in the New Hampshire primary.

"Kefauver did just that all right," Aiken said Thursday, "but now he's got a man—Truman—who must be fighting mad and the going will be rougher."

• • •

AS FOR TAFT, Sen. Ives (R-NY) who is backing Eisenhower against the Ohioan for the GOP presidential nomination, declared:

"Don't anyone think for a minute that Bob Taft is out of the race. On our side, we aren't taking anything for granted. That July nominating convention is still a long way off and anything can happen in politics."

In New Hampshire, Kefauver won over Truman in the preferential—popularity—contest by 20,147 votes to 16,298. The Tennessean also won all 12 Democratic delegates, who have eight convention votes.

On the Republican ticket, Eisenhower piled up 46,497 preferential votes to 35,820 for Taft. And Eisenhower, too, made a clean sweep of the 14 delegates to the GOP convention.

Kefauver, weary from two weeks of New Hampshire campaigning, told a news conference here Wednesday that "victory in one primary is not a sure sign of success in others." He added:

"I still have a long, hard, uphill fight and it is going to take a lot of work. . . .by my supporters over the country. . . .I think I have come a long way since January 23 when I announced I was in this fight to the finish and that is my position today."

• • •

TAFT, campaigning in Texas, said he was "a little disappointed" about his showing in New Hampshire. He had counted on winning at least four of the delegates.

Truman declined to comment on his defeat by Kefauver.

However, the President's press secretary, Joseph Short, said at the Little White House in Key West, Fla., Kefauver's victory would have no effect on Truman's decision on whether to seek reelection.

Truman Lashes Foes Of U.S. Power Plans

CHICAGO, March 13—(AP)—President Truman lashed out Thursday at opposition to the federal power program as "one of the most cynical and dangerous developments in many years."

His remarks were in a special message sent to the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association which Secretary of the Interior Chapman presented in a prepared speech.

Both the President and Chapman pledged to fight for continuation of the federal power program.

"I am determined to do everything I can to see that the policy of conserving and developing our priceless water power resources for the public benefit shall go forward," the President said.

"This campaign to destroy federal power policy must not succeed," Chapman said.

The President said the power industry's "propaganda campaign," has switched from attacks on the valley authority idea to denouncing the public power program as "socialism."

Truman said the power industry seeks to "exploit" the nation's water power resources throughout the country.

Lord Ismay Takes Top Position

LONDON, March 13 — (AP)—Lord Ismay, career-soldier and pug-nosed buddy of Prime Minister Churchill, has taken on the tough job of being NATO's "civilian Eisenhower."

He accepted the civilian command secretary general of the general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization — after a string of other statesmen had turned it down. The 64-year-old general, quitting as Britain's secretary of state for commonwealth relations, will start work alongside Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower next month at Paris headquarters.

Ashville youngsters pitched in Wednesday to donate a huge pile of gifts for kiddies of the Pickaway County Children's Home.

City firemen, collecting donations for the Home youngsters, said the back ends of two autos were filled with gifts from Ashville youngsters.

Helping in the donations were Ashville school, Ashville Girl Scout unit 16 and Brownie Scout unit 12.

In addition, other gifts included $28 in cash and donations.

Gifts were made by Carol Metcalf, toys; Clark Lovett, $5; Vernon Weiler, books; Nancy Cromley, $1; Mrs. Stanley Bower, $2; Mt. Pleasant WSCS, $10; and "two friends," $5 each.

Governor Heads Probe Of Anthrax In Ohio

COLUMBUS, March 13—(AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche Thursday took over personal direction of the investigation of anthrax, the disease that has killed 94 hogs in 16 Ohio counties.

He called in State Agriculture Director H. S. Foust; Dr. Paul Q. Peterson, assistant state health director; Dr. Harry G. Geyer, state veterinarian; Ralph Locher, the governor's secretary, and John Peck, state tax commissioner and long a personal adviser to Lausche.

The Agriculture Department Wednesday announced a swine food product manufactured in Ohio has been "found positive for anthrax."

The governor said:

"We have good reason to suspect the contamination comes from imported bone meal."

He said the conference was to make certain that food products of other processes are fully analyzed. The governor said his aides are running down every lead on possible contamination.

• • •

FOUST identified the manufacturer of the known contaminated feed as the E. G. Buchseib division of Inland Products, Inc., which has a plant southeast of Columbus. He said the plant is owned by the Baas Brothers of Columbus.

Foust listed the infected counties as Clark, Clinton, Clermont, Fayette, Franklin, Hardin, Athens, Greene, Highland, Licking, Miami, Meigs, Pickaway, Morgan, Ross and Warren.

Foust said infected farms have been quarantined and infected and exposed animals isolated. Anthrax produces ulcerations of the skin, enlargement of the spleen and general collapse in animals.

"No swine are being released for slaughter from these farms," Foust said, "until after a thorough inspection. . . .to determine their freedom from anthrax."

He said the disease has not been found in humans.

Foust added all the infected food product was being called back for sterilization and the plant is being decontaminated.

Local Farmers Are Advised To Be 'Observant'

Pickaway County farmers who learned Wednesday that some hogs in this area have the dread anthrax disease were advised Thursday not to become excited or scared.

Instead they were advised to assume an attitude of watchfulness and be observant.

In other words, keep an eye on your hogs. If they show signs of illness or go off feed, call in a veterinary to investigate before making any other move.

Local officials Thursday indicated the local cases of anthrax may be located north of Ashville and east of Williamsport. Exact location has not been made available.

Little Folks In Tax Agency Very Jittery

NEW YORK, March 13 — (AP)—It was touch and go for a while at Deck 12.

The internal revenue agent at Desk 12, district three, the New York tax collector's office, U. S. Treasury Department, was talking to a newspaperman.

A woman came up and thanked him for helping her with her income tax return. Then she gave him a nickel.

"It wasn't a bribe," the agent explained. As a matter of fact, she still owes me a nickel. I lent her a dime for a phone call."

Although this was said with a smile, it illustrated a mood widely prevalent among tax people these days. They're on the defensive. One female agent explained:

"Every time I withdraw $20 from my savings account and put it in my checking account, I do it with a cashier's check. That's to make sure I can account for the money later.

"You can't imagine the great strain we're under in the Internal Revenue Bureau because of the scandals. Even us little people. You put my name in the paper and some crackpot will see it and write in to the collector saying I ought to be investigated, that I'm living beyond my means. This kind of thing has happened and innocent people have suffered."

George T. Woods, divisional chief, said he dreaded the opening of the office for this year's income tax season.

"I thought it would be hell. I thought we'd take a beating over things like bribes and minks and deep freezes. But the great majority of people have been very nice. Maybe they feel sorry for the rest of us because of the publicity we've gotten for a few bad apples."

Doctor Receives Threatening Note

NEW YORK, March 13 — (AP)—A threatening letter to a Brooklyn doctor has added another twisted piece to the grim puzzle of who killed Arnold Schuster, finger man of bank robber Willie "The Actor" Sutton.

The threat letter — examined today by postal authorities — was mailed to Dr. Solomon M. Fialka, a neighbor of the slain 24-year-old pants salesman. Fialka was first to examine Schuster's body after it was riddled by gunfire Saturday night.

Strange Airship West Of City Stirs Comment

"Flying saucer?" "New type jet plane?" "Atomic plane?"

A mysterious object streaking northward over the western portion of Pickaway County Wednesday evening provoked much speculation among persons who saw the object.

First local report of a "cigar-shaped" object was made by Lincoln S. Mader of 202 North Scioto street.

Mader said he thought the object at first might have been one of the twin-engine jet ships based at Lockbourne Air Force Base. He said it appeared to be at about 30,000 feet.

• • •

ON STUDIED concentration, however, Mader said he discovered the object apparently was wingless and was leaving a short exhaust trail, which quickly dissipated.

Also reporting he had noticed the strange object was John Anderson of near Ringgold, while several residents of Ashville also reported seeing it.

Ashville's reports said the object was leaving an orange-tinted exhaust trail behind it.

As in the reports from Circleville, Ashville residents said the object was travelling north at a rapid rate of speed and seemed to have no wings.

Appearance of the strange object in the sky also stirred Columbus west siders to besiege nearby airports with reports and questions.

One Columbus man told newsmen the object was travelling southwest when he first saw it. He added then the object made a circle and headed northward.

The same man said a brilliant light flashed from the nose of the object but went out almost immediately.

Lockbourne Air Base found itself swamped with calls and supplied the callers with the information that the craft probably was a jet aircraft leaving a vapor trail.

$1,000 Exemption On Tax Proposed

WASHINGTON, March 13 — (AP)—Rep. Cole (R-NY) has proposed the federal income tax personal exemption be raised from $600 to $1,000.

Cole said he was introducing such legislation. He said it is "long overdue" because of the constantly rising cost of living and "the tremendous cost of the present government."

Marines To Shun Selective Service

WASHINGTON, March 13 — (AP)—The Marine Corps says it plans to draft no more men after June 30 because volunteer enlistments are increasing and the corps is nearing its authorized strength of 235,320.

The Marine Corps has drafted 73,430 men since last August when it turned to selective service for the first time after volunteers failed to meet replacement needs.

'Peace, Brother' Says Victim Of Holdup Attempt

PHILADELPHIA, March 13—(AP)—Two armed holdup men walked into the Peace Mission garage here early Thursday and told Manager Andrew Swanson:

"This is a holdup!"

"Peace, brother," Swanson replied.

"We're not kidding. This is a stickup," one man threatened.

"Peace, brother," Swanson repeated.

With that the gunman put his weapon in his pocket.

But his accomplice, who was brandishing a nightstick, was not so easily pacified. He beat Swanson on the head and arms before both fled in exasperation, Swanson told police.

Swanson said the garage is owned by Father Divine, Negro spiritual leader, whose of-quoted, "Peace, it's wonderful," is the basic tenet of his teachings.

B-29s Collide In Mid-Air

Blind Flying Crash Kills 15 Airmen

SAN ANTONIO, March 13—(AP)—Two B-29 Superfortresses whose pilots couldn't see where they were going while flying on instruments, collided and carried 15 crewmen to their deaths in the hills of South Central Texas Wednesday.

One bomber plunged to earth and shattered, scattering fragments and bodies over a five-mile area. The other glided down several miles away, exploded and burned.

The planes were on training flights from Randolph Air Force Base here. They were being flown mechanically and the pilot's cabins were blacked out.

One plane carried seven men and the other eight, the Air Force base said. Normally a B-29 combat crew consists of 11 men.

D. C. McDonald, superintendent of a nearby ranch, said he saw the planes flying in formation.

He gave this account:

"Suddenly one creased over and apparently clipped the tail section from the other plane. One plane went down and the other kept on flying on a level keel, with good altitude as if undamaged.

• • •

"THE PLANE came in low over a windmill, just barely missing it. Suddenly the left wing dipped and went into the ground. The right wing cut off a tree. The plane plowed several hundred feet and the four motors were found on a hilltop several hundred feet away."

Jack Nolen, who lives nearby, reported finding a paper back book with most of its pages burned away but with the title intact.

It read: "I Want A Big Funeral."

Siamese Twins Do OK After Fifth Month

DAYTON, March 13 — (AP)—You might envy the Gaylon twins. They're star boarders in St. Elizabeth hospital nursery, for one thing. Any number of meals a day, baths, clean clothes, and no income tax to pay.

For another, Donald and Ronald were born into a very exclusive club, Its founders were two Chinese tots named Chang and Eng. And like all good clubs, it goes back a long time to Siam, in 18811.

Here's a progress report on the first Siamese twins ever to survive in Dayton:

Donald is stronger. Ronald is alert and ready to play. Both are as active as any five-month-old babies you'd beam at anywhere.

The blue-eyed, fair-haired twins were born last October 2 to Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Gaylon.

"At birth," said Mrs. Dolores Armstrong, head nurse of the pediatric ward, "the twins weighed 11 pounds, 11½ ounces. They weigh more than 21 pounds now, and at the end of six months, they probably will have doubled their weight which is normal."

Donald and Ronald are joined by flesh, not bone, at a point below the navel down to the genital area. There's been no decision yet whether an attempt will be made to separate them.

Meanwhile, life is just a bowl of pablum for the two.

Reds Say 50,000 'Freed' At Front

UN Says Next Truce Move Up To Communist Negotiators

MUNSAN, March 13—(AP)—Allied truce negotiators told the Reds Thursday they were wasting time trying to get "the unconditional repatriation of all prisoners we hold in exchange for a small portion of those you hold."

That's what the latest Red plan amounts to, said Rear Adm. R. E. Libby; it is not acceptable.

The Communists insist prisoner exchange plans be adopted before turning over a "complete and bona fide" prisoner roster.

Libby said that's "putting the cart before the horse."

He told the Communists they must make the next move. The Reds said it's Libby's move.

• • •

COL. ANDREW J. Kinney described as "strictly a goose egg" a two hour staff officers' meeting on truce supervision in a nearby tent.

The Communists suggested last week that prisoner exchange discussions proceed on the basis of original lists traded last December. North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho said Thursday the plan offered a step-by-step solution of the problem.

"You have offset all of our efforts to make progress," Lee said. "The lack of confidence is attributable to your negative attitude."

He said the UN Command must abandon this "negative attitude" if it is interested in reaching an armistice.

Libby demanded a complete list of prisoners in asking once more for an accounting of some 50,000 missing South Korean soldiers. The Reds have said they were released at the front. The UN believes most were impressed into the Communist armies.

"We have been insisting that you account for them since December of last year," Libby said. "The simple statement that you released all of them at the front to disappear from the face of the earth obviously is not a credible accounting."

• • •

MEANWHILE, the Allies reported that American and Turkish troops stopped a Red assault battalion in its tracks Wednesday night in the heaviest communist attack in a month. A U. S. 25th Division officer said 200 of the 750 attacking Reds were killed or wounded.

The Communists struck behind a heavy artillery barrage against the U. S. 35th Regiment and Turkish Brigade in the eastern mountains near Heartbreak Ridge.

Assault waves came in three prongs along a 2½-mile front. But, a division spokesman said, "they got nowhere."

A curtain of Allied artillery and mortar fire halted the Reds 100 yards short of UN lines. The Communists pulled back after a sharp two-hour fight.

The entire 155-mile Korean front quieted Thursday, the U. S. Eighth Army said, except for patrol clashes in the center.

American warships pounded the eastern end of the line in round-the-clock attacks. Warships and planes combined to cut Red rails in 146 places, smash five railroad bridges and sink 30 small boats.

American F-86 Sabrejet pilots, who had shot down 15 Russian-type jets in three days, did not find a single Red jet in the air Thursday.

PATRONAGE BEING CONSIDERED?

Truman's Cleanup Plan Facing Vote In Senate

WASHINGTON, March 13 — (AP)—President Truman's Internal Revenue Bureau reorganization plan—which he calls a key weapon in the fight on corruption—was scheduled to come up for a Senate vote late Thursday.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn), floor manager for the plan, predicted confidently its opponents would not be able to muster the 49 votes necessary to defeat it. But he said the issue would be "nip and tuck."

Sen. McClelland (D-Ark), leading the opposition, would not make any forecast. Those opposing the plan were counting on a combination of Republicans and Southern Democrats to defeat it.

The government Operations Committee (Formerly the Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments) voted seven-to - five to disapprove it; the majority was made up of two Southern Democrats and five Republicans.

• • •

SEN. GEORGE (D-Ga.), 74-year-old veteran who carries great weight with Southern senators, made the major speech against the plan Wednesday and was to talk again Thursday. He had some acid comments about his former Senate colleague, Harry Truman.

However, three Republicans—Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith (Me), Dirksen (Ill) and Aiken (Vt)—spoke for the plan Wednesday and others are committed for it. The supporters said they too would have some Southern Democratic support.

Truman sen. his plan to Congress in mid-January. The deadline for action on it expires at Friday midnight; it goes into effect then if Congress does not act or if either branch does not vote to disapprove it. The House approved it unanimously.

The President said the proposal would streamline operations of the tax-collecting service and tighten administrative control over the 55,000 employes all along the line.

Briefly, the Truman plan would take the present 64 district revenue supervisors out of politics and replace them with 25 agents taken from civil service rolls.

The 64 present agents represent political patronage, are named by the President upon recommendation from senators. Under the proposed plan, only one man—the top official—would be appointed on a political basis.

Truman is not the first President to try and get the Internal Revenue Bureau away from politics. President Wilson failed when politics - conscious senators overrode him.

Floor Collapses

FULLINGEN, Germany, March 13—(AP)—The top floor of a textile factory packed with raw material collapsed and fell on the floor beneath Wednesday, killing six of the 200 workers.

Those Polls Still Not To Be Relied Upon

MANCHESTER, N. H., March 13—(AP)—Question: How did the polls perform in the New Hampshire election?

Answer: They turned out to be almost as unpredictable as people.

With few exceptions, advance surveys foretold the victory for Gen. Eisenhower over Sen. Taft. In estimating a 12-2 score for Eisenhower's delegates, they were not far from the 14-0 sweep his slate actually achieved. In the "popularity" primary "Ike" rolled up a bigger point-spread—about 11 per cent—over Taft than was expected. The highest estimates had not gone above 10 per cent.

So they did pretty well in figuring a man who had never been clocked in an election, and never appeared in a form chart.

Therefore, you might have expected the forecasts to be still more accurate on two known quantities in politics like President Truman and Sen. Kefauver. But they weren't. None gave the senator a ghost of a chance against Truman, and none foresaw the astonishing sweep his delegates made.

'Chink' Marion To Be Honored

Ohio Conservation Congress, a statewide organization of sportsmen, will honor A. W. (Chink) Marion, chief of Ohio's Department of Natural Resources, as conservation's "Man of the Year" in Columbus this weekend.

Announcement that Marion, a Circleville native, was the OCC's "Man of the Year" comes from Pat Patterson, president of the congress. He will be honored Saturday night when the OCC holds its annual banquet in the Neil House, Columbus.

Morris Rips Into Senate Probers

'Wicked Spirit' Prevails Capital, Cleanup Boss Says

WASHINGTON, March 13 — (AP)—New troubles were brewing Thursday on Capitol Hill for government cleanup man Newbold Morris. There was talk of citing him for contempt of Congress in the wake of his blast at what he termed the "diseased minds" of senators investigating him.

Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis), the main target of Morris' denunciation of what he called "character destruction" in congressional probes, said he would press for a full scale Senate inquiry into accusations voiced in the House by Rep. Potter (R-Mich) last month that Morris has a "sordid background" of activities in Communist front organizations.

Morris, a Republican like the senators he attacked, has denied the charges publicly and vigorously.

There was a different story on the other side of the Capitol. Rep. Celler (D-NY) declared he was convinced of Morris' honesty and integrity and said his House Judiciary Committee would act "pronto" on a bill to give him full subpoena powers.

"The Senate committee's examination to date reveals no wrongdoing on his part," Celler said.

• • •

BUT BACK in the Senate, Sen. Nixon (R-Calif.) publicly called on President Truman to fire Morris from the cleanup job as a "smart aleck who showed a lack of mature judgment and emotional stability."

The special investigations subcommittee, before which Morris denied any wrongdoing in surplus tanker deals or trade with Communist China, resumed its hearings Thursday to determine whether Morris had any help from the White House in the ship deals.

Morris wound up his testimony before that group Wednesday with an attack which several members called "contemptuous." The corruption prober declared:

"Down here in Washington in the last three years you have created an atmosphere so vile that people have lost confidence in their government."

Morris' temper blazed repeatedly under the senators' inquisition and at the end he said:

"Over a period of months I've resented aspersions you have cast at me. I'm glad of this opportunity to tell you to your face.

"I can't think any man with red blood in his veins could sit here and take the insinuations and innuendoes that have come from the diseased minds in this chamber."

• • •

MORRIS INSISTED that because of the manner in which some investigations, including this one, have been conducted, the people "have lost faith in their government."

"It's a good, clean, fine government," he said.

Then, pointing a finger at McCarthy, he said he was not talking about the misconduct he was appointed to investigate.

"It's what you people have done—to Mrs. Rosenberg and David Lilienthal and to Acheson."

"It's your business — character destruction," he told the Wisconsin senator.

"I'm referring to the way a lot of decent people have been treated—Averell Harriman and Acheson and the President."

He said it was making "a lot of other decent people" afraid of taking jobs with the government. McCarthy broke in to say:

"We're not here to decide if the great red dean, Mr. Acheson, is a Communist or not."

Nixon asked whether Morris was saying that he, Mundt and McCarthy "had been unfair" in questioning him.

"That's an understatement!" the cleanup chief said.

Morris called a news conference immediately after he left the hearing room and continued his denunciation of "a spirit of wickedness which prompts a man in high public office to put decent people on the state" to challenge their patriotism.

Local Farmers Are Advised To Be 'Observant'

Pickaway County farmers who learned Wednesday that some hogs in this area have the dread anthrax disease were advised Thursday not to become excited or scared.

Instead they were advised to assume an attitude of watchfulness and be observant.

In other words, keep an eye on your hogs. If they show signs of illness or go off feed, call in a veterinary to investigate before making any other move.

Local officials Thursday indicated the local cases of anthrax may be located north of Ashville and east of Williamsport. Exact location has not been made available.

Strange Airship West Of City Stirs Comment

"Flying saucer?" "New type jet plane?" "Atomic plane?"

A mysterious object streaking northward over the western portion of Pickaway County Wednesday evening provoked much speculation among persons who saw the object.

First local report of a "cigar-shaped" object was made by Lincoln S. Mader of 202 North Scioto street.

Mader said he thought the object at first might have been one of the twin-engine jet ships based at Lockbourne Air Force Base. He said it appeared to be at about 30,000 feet.

• • •

ON STUDIED concentration, however, Mader said he discovered the object apparently was wingless and was leaving a short exhaust trail, which quickly dissipated.

Also reporting he had noticed the strange object was John Anderson of near Ringgold, while several residents of Ashville also reported seeing it.

Ashville's reports said the object was leaving an orange-tinted exhaust trail behind it.

As in the reports from Circleville, Ashville residents said the object was travelling north at a rapid rate of speed and seemed to have no wings.

Appearance of the strange object in the sky also stirred Columbus west siders to besiege nearby airports with reports and questions.

One Columbus man told newsmen the object was travelling southwest when he first saw it. He added then the object made a circle and headed northward.

The same man said a brilliant light flashed from the nose of the object but went out almost immediately.

Lockbourne Air Base found itself swamped with calls and supplied the callers with the information that the craft probably was a jet aircraft leaving a vapor trail.

Little Folks In Tax Agency Very Jittery

NEW YORK, March 13 — (AP)—It was touch and go for a while at Deck 12.

The internal revenue agent at Desk 12, district three, the New York tax collector's office, U. S. Treasury Department, was talking to a newspaperman.

A woman came up and thanked him for helping her with her income tax return. Then she gave him a nickel.

"It wasn't a bribe," the agent explained. As a matter of fact, she still owes me a nickel. I lent her a dime for a phone call."

Although this was said with a smile, it illustrated a mood widely prevalent among tax people these days. They're on the defensive. One female agent explained:

"Every time I withdraw $20 from my savings account and put it in my checking account, I do it with a cashier's check. That's to make sure I can account for the money later.

"You can't imagine the great strain we're under in the Internal Revenue Bureau because of the scandals. Even us little people. You put my name in the paper and some crackpot will see it and write in to the collector saying I ought to be investigated, that I'm living beyond my means. This kind of thing has happened and innocent people have suffered."

George T. Woods, divisional chief, said he dreaded the opening of the office for this year's income tax season.

"I thought it would be hell. I thought we'd take a beating over things like bribes and minks and deep freezes. But the great majority of people have been very nice. Maybe they feel sorry for the rest of us because of the publicity we've gotten for a few bad apples."

Ashville Groups Aid In Fund For Home Youngsters

Ashville youngsters pitched in Wednesday to donate a huge pile of gifts for kiddies of the Pickaway County Children's Home.

City firemen, collecting donations for the Home youngsters, said the back ends of two autos were filled with gifts from Ashville youngsters.

Helping in the donations were Ashville school, Ashville Girl Scout unit 16 and Brownie Scout unit 12.

In addition, other gifts included $28 in cash and donations.

Gifts were made by Carol Metcalf, toys; Clark Lovett, $5; Vernon Weiler, books; Nancy Cromley, $1; Mrs. Stanley Bower, $2; Mt. Pleasant WSCS, $10; and "two friends," $5 each.

BUENOS AIRES, March 13—(AP)—The government unveiled the first Argentine-made automobile Wednesday night—a flivver car with a two cylinder engine developing 23 horsepower.

It is expected to do 60 miles an hour and carry four passengers in a two door sedan body.

Doctor Receives Threatening Note

NEW YORK, March 13 — (AP)—A threatening letter to a Brooklyn doctor has added another twisted piece to the grim puzzle of who killed Arnold Schuster, finger man of bank robber Willie "The Actor" Sutton.

The threat letter — examined today by postal authorities — was mailed to Dr. Solomon M. Fialka, a neighbor of the slain 24-year-old pants salesman. Fialka was first to examine Schuster's body after it was riddled by gunfire Saturday night.

'Peace, Brother' Says Victim Of Holdup Attempt

PHILADELPHIA, March 13—(AP)—Two armed holdup men walked into the Peace Mission garage here early Thursday and told Manager Andrew Swanson:

"This is a holdup!"

"Peace, brother," Swanson replied.

"We're not kidding. This is a stickup," one man threatened.

"Peace, brother," Swanson repeated.

With that the gunman put his weapon in his pocket.

But his accomplice, who was brandishing a nightstick, was not so easily pacified. He beat Swanson on the head and arms before both fled in exasperation, Swanson told police.

Swanson said the garage is owned by Father Divine, Negro spiritual leader, whose of-quoted, "Peace, it's wonderful," is the basic tenet of his teachings.

B-29s Collide In Mid-Air

Blind Flying Crash Kills 15 Airmen

SAN ANTONIO, March 13—(AP)—Two B-29 Superfortresses whose pilots couldn't see where they were going while flying on instruments, collided and carried 15 crewmen to their deaths in the hills of South Central Texas Wednesday.

One bomber plunged to earth and shattered, scattering fragments and bodies over a five-mile area. The other glided down several miles away, exploded and burned.

The planes were on training flights from Randolph Air Force Base here. They were being flown mechanically and the pilot's cabins were blacked out.

One plane carried seven men and the other eight, the Air Force base said. Normally a B-29 combat crew consists of 11 men.

D. C. McDonald, superintendent of a nearby ranch, said he saw the planes flying in formation.

He gave this account:

"Suddenly one creased over and apparently clipped the tail section from the other plane. One plane went down and the other kept on flying on a level keel, with good altitude as if undamaged.

• • •

"THE PLANE came in low over a windmill, just barely missing it. Suddenly the left wing dipped and went into the ground. The right wing cut off a tree. The plane plowed several hundred feet and the four motors were found on a hilltop several hundred feet away."

Jack Nolen, who lives nearby, reported finding a paper back book with most of its pages burned away but with the title intact.

It read: "I Want A Big Funeral."

Siamese Twins Do OK After Fifth Month

DAYTON, March 13 — (AP)—You might envy the Gaylon twins. They're star boarders in St. Elizabeth hospital nursery, for one thing. Any number of meals a day, baths, clean clothes, and no income tax to pay.

For another, Donald and Ronald were born into a very exclusive club. Its founders were two Chinese tots named Chang and Eng. And like all good clubs, it goes back a long time to Siam, in 18811.

Here's a progress report on the first Siamese twins ever to survive in Dayton:

Donald is stronger. Ronald is alert and ready to play. Both are as active as any five-month-old babies you'd beam at anywhere.

The blue-eyed, fair-haired twins were born last October 2 to Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Gaylon.

"At birth," said Mrs. Dolores Armstrong, head nurse of the pediatric ward, "the twins weighed 11 pounds, 11½ ounces. They weigh more than 21 pounds now, and at the end of six months, they probably will have doubled their weight which is normal."

Donald and Ronald are joined by flesh, not bone, at a point below the navel down to the genital area. There's been no decision yet whether an attempt will be made to separate them.

Meanwhile, life is just a bowl of pablum for the two.

$1,000 Exemption On Tax Proposed

WASHINGTON, March 13 — (AP)—Rep. Cole (R-NY) has proposed the federal income tax personal exemption be raised from $600 to $1,000.

Cole said he was introducing such legislation. He said it is "long overdue" because of the constantly rising cost of living and "the tremendous cost of the present government."

Marines To Shun Selective Service

WASHINGTON, March 13 — (AP)—The Marine Corps says it plans to draft no more men after June 30 because volunteer enlistments are increasing and the corps is nearing its authorized strength of 235,320.

The Marine Corps has drafted 73,430 men since last August when it turned to selective service for the first time after volunteers failed to meet replacement needs.

Reds Say 50,000 'Freed' At Front

UN Says Next Truce Move Up To Communist Negotiators

MUNSAN, March 13—(AP)—Allied truce negotiators told the Reds Thursday they were wasting time trying to get "the unconditional repatriation of all prisoners we hold in exchange for a small portion of those you hold."

That's what the latest Red plan amounts to, said Rear Adm. R. E. Libby; it is not acceptable.

The Communists insist prisoner exchange plans be adopted before turning over a "complete and bona fide" prisoner roster.

Libby said that's "putting the cart before the horse."

He told the Communists they must make the next move. The Reds said it's Libby's move.

• • •

COL. ANDREW J. Kinney described as "strictly a goose egg" a two hour staff officers' meeting on truce supervision in a nearby tent.

The Communists suggested last week that prisoner exchange discussions proceed on the basis of original lists traded last December. North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho said Thursday the plan offered a step-by-step solution of the problem.

"You have offset all of our efforts to make progress," Lee said. "The lack of confidence is attributable to your negative attitude."

He said the UN Command must abandon this "negative attitude" if it is interested in reaching an armistice.

Libby demanded a complete list of prisoners in asking once more for an accounting of some 50,000 missing South Korean soldiers. The Reds have said they were released at the front. The UN believes most were impressed into the Communist armies.

"We have been insisting that you account for them since December of last year," Libby said. "The simple statement that you released all of them at the front to disappear from the face of the earth obviously is not a credible accounting."

• • •

MEANWHILE, the Allies reported that American and Turkish troops stopped a Red assault battalion in its tracks Wednesday night in the heaviest communist attack in a month. A U. S. 25th Division officer said 200 of the 750 attacking Reds were killed or wounded.

The Communists struck behind a heavy artillery barrage against the U. S. 35th Regiment and Turkish Brigade in the eastern mountains near Heartbreak Ridge.

Assault waves came in three prongs along a 2½-mile front. But, a division spokesman said, "they got nowhere."

A curtain of Allied artillery and mortar fire halted the Reds 100 yards short of UN lines. The Communists pulled back after a sharp two-hour fight.

The entire 155-mile Korean front quieted Thursday, the U. S. Eighth Army said, except for patrol clashes in the center.

American warships pounded the eastern end of the line in round-the-clock attacks. Warships and planes combined to cut Red rails in 146 places, smash five railroad bridges and sink 30 small boats.

American F-86 Sabrejet pilots, who had shot down 15 Russian-type jets in three days, did not find a single Red jet in the air Thursday.

PATRONAGE BEING CONSIDERED?

Truman's Cleanup Plan Facing Vote In Senate

WASHINGTON, March 13 — (AP)—President Truman's Internal Revenue Bureau reorganization plan—which he calls a key weapon in the fight on corruption—was scheduled to come up for a Senate vote late Thursday.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn), floor manager for the plan, predicted confidently its opponents would not be able to muster the 49 votes necessary to defeat it. But he said the issue would be "nip and tuck."

Sen. McClelland (D-Ark), leading the opposition, would not make any forecast. Those opposing the plan were counting on a combination of Republicans and Southern Democrats to defeat it.

The government Operations Committee (Formerly the Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments) voted seven-to-five to disapprove it; the majority was made up of two Southern Democrats and five Republicans.

• • •

SEN. GEORGE (D-Ga.), 74-year-old veteran who carries great weight with Southern senators, made the major speech against the plan Wednesday and was to talk again Thursday. He had some acid comments about his former Senate colleague, Harry Truman.

However, three Republicans—Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith (Me), Dirksen (Ill) and Aiken (Vt)—spoke for the plan Wednesday and others are committed for it. The supporters said they too would have some Southern Democratic support.

Truman sen. his plan to Congress in mid-January. The deadline for action on it expires at Friday midnight; it goes into effect then if Congress does not act or if either branch does not vote to disapprove it. The House approved it unanimously.

The President said the proposal would streamline operations of the tax-collecting service and tighten administrative control over the 55,000 employes all along the line.

Briefly, the Truman plan would take the present 64 district revenue supervisors out of politics and replace them with 25 agents taken from civil service rolls.

The 64 present agents represent political patronage, are named by the President upon recommendation from senators. Under the proposed plan, only one man—the top official—would be appointed on a political basis.

Truman is not the first President to try and get the Internal Revenue Bureau away from politics. President Wilson failed when politics - conscious senators overrode him.

Those Polls Still Not To Be Relied Upon

MANCHESTER, N. H., March 13—(AP)—Question: How did the polls perform in the New Hampshire election?

Answer: They turned out to be almost as unpredictable as people.

With few exceptions, advance surveys foretold the victory for Gen. Eisenhower over Sen. Taft. In estimating a 12-2 score for Eisenhower's delegates, they were not far from the 14-0 sweep his slate actually achieved. In the "popularity" primary "Ike" rolled up a bigger point-spread—about 11 per cent—over Taft than was expected. The highest estimates had not gone above 10 per cent.

So they did pretty well in figuring a man who had never been clocked in an election, and never appeared in a form chart.

Therefore, you might have expected the forecasts to be still more accurate on two known quantities in politics like President Truman and Sen. Kefauver. But they weren't. None gave the senator a ghost of a chance against Truman, and none foresaw the astonishing sweep his delegates made.

Morris Rips Into Senate Probers

'Wicked Spirit' Prevails Capital, Cleanup Boss Says

WASHINGTON, March 13 — (AP)—New troubles were brewing Thursday on Capitol Hill for government cleanup man Newbold Morris. There was talk of citing him for contempt of Congress in the wake of his blast at what he termed the "diseased minds" of senators investigating him.

Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis), the main target of Morris' denunciation of what he called "character destruction" in congressional probes, said he would press for a full scale Senate inquiry into accusations voiced in the House by Rep. Potter (R-Mich) last month that Morris has a "sordid background" of activities in Communist front organizations.

Morris, a Republican like the senators he attacked, has denied the charges publicly and vigorously.

There was a different story on the other side of the Capitol. Rep. Celler (D-NY) declared he was convinced of Morris' honesty and integrity and said his House Judiciary Committee would act "pronto" on a bill to give him full subpoena powers.

"The Senate committee's examination to date reveals no wrongdoing on his part," Celler said.

• • •

BUT BACK in the Senate, Sen. Nixon (R-Calif.) publicly called on President Truman to fire Morris from the cleanup job as a "smart aleck who showed a lack of mature judgment and emotional stability."

The special investigations subcommittee, before which Morris denied any wrongdoing in surplus tanker deals or trade with Communist China, resumed its hearings Thursday to determine whether Morris had any help from the White House in the ship deals.

Morris wound up his testimony before that group Wednesday with an attack which several members called "contemptuous." The corruption prober declared:

"Down here in Washington in the last three years you have created an atmosphere so vile that people have lost confidence in their government."

Morris' temper blazed repeatedly under the senators' inquisition and at the end he said:

"Over a period of months I've resented aspersions you have cast at me. I'm glad of this opportunity to tell you to your face.

"I can't think any man with red blood in his veins could sit here and take the insinuations and innuendoes that have come from the diseased minds in this chamber."

• • •

MORRIS INSISTED that because of the manner in which some investigations, including this one, have been conducted, the people "have lost faith in their government."

"It's a good, clean, fine government," he said.

Then, pointing a finger at McCarthy, he said he was not talking about the misconduct he was appointed to investigate.

"It's what you people have done—to Mrs. Rosenberg and David Lilienthal and to Acheson."

"It's your business — character destruction," he told the Wisconsin senator.

"I'm referring to the way a lot of decent people have been treated—Averell Harriman and Acheson and the President."

He said it was making "a lot of other decent people" afraid of taking jobs with the government. McCarthy broke in to say:

"We're not here to decide if the great red dean, Mr. Acheson, is a Communist or not."

Nixon asked whether Morris was saying that he, Mundt and McCarthy "had been unfair" in questioning him.

"That's an understatement!" the cleanup chief said.

Morris called a news conference immediately after he left the hearing room and continued his denunciation of "a spirit of wickedness which prompts a man in high public office to put decent people on the state" to challenge their patriotism.

Local Musicians To Appear In District Test

A group of young musicians staged a special performance Thursday morning for Circleville high school youngsters in an assembly program.

The musicians are local pupils who are to represent the city Saturday during district music adjudication competition in Columbus.

Director Truman Eberly said the group will participate in the district adjudications to seek ratings for their performances. Five ratings usually are given: superior, excellent, very good, good and fair.

NEW YORK— (AP) —The Red Cross is something the average man takes on faith, just as he does mother love or the wings of an airplane in which he flies.

Unless he is involved in a general calamity, he may never see at first hand what the organization does. But he trusts the goals to which it is pledged.

This year the Red Cross in America is trying to raise at least $85 million to carry out its widening program, which last year included the raising of a million pints of blood.

Just what is the Red Cross?

One of the most beautiful definitions was penned long ago by the late James A. Mills, famous Associated Press foreign correspondent, who was once told by Mahatma Gandhi, "when I enter Heaven I expect to see you waiting to interview me at the gates."

As a young man, Mills served as a Red Cross worker in European countries during and after the first world war. What he saw, then and later, of the organization's international work for the good of mankind led him to write the following tribute to it:

"I am the Red Cross. I was born of the hearts of men. I am sustained by forty million souls. My mission is of mercy, kindness and charity. My bounds are the limits of the earth. I am my brother's keeper. I know neither color, race nor religion. My creed is the creed of service. My voice is the voice of the American people. My goal is the goal of a higher humanity. My precept is the precept of God. My reward is the gratitude of the widow and sick, of the happy and the bereaved.

"I go forth into the darkness of the night; into the uncertainties of the day. I penetrate the fields of battle. I defy the peril of shell and bullet. I lighten the horrors of the combat. I encourage and inspire the soldier. I give him a thousand comforts. I minister to those he has left at home. I claim the wounded from the battlefield; I bind their wounds and ease their sufferings. I mark the graves of the dead.

"I eradicate epidemics. I am the foe of plague and pestilence. I mitigate the horrors of floods and fires and wrecks. I am the arch-enemy of calamities. I triumph over poverty, want and woe. I house the homeless. I feed the hungry. I clothe the naked. I protect the widow and the orphan.

"I am the friend and helper of all nations. My hand and heart encompass the globe. My legionaires I send to the uttermost part of the earth - across the threatened ocean, through war-swept territories, over infested lands. I am the sentinel of the health of the human race. My sympathy and succor are boundless. A dozen nations return me homage; a dozen potentates pay me tribute. The people of the earth offer me their prayers.

"My emblem is the cross—symbol of supreme charity and of saviour of men. Before me, the enemy stays his hand and bows in reverence to my mercy. Behind me march ten million soldiers, with hearts for any fate. I challenge and triumph over death. My strength and struggles are for the living; my prayers and compassion for the dead.

"I am the saviour of life, the assuager of death. I am my brother's keeper. I am the Red Cross."

Refugee Club Studies America

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Right now the "Blue and White Club" has 72 members — all displaced persons from Europe. Next month there may be more or less depending on how fast the members are absorbed into the American way of life.

As soon as the newcomers learn a little of the language, the customs and the peculiarities of the country they drop out. That's good news to the social workers who operate the organization. The club is sponsored by the Young Men's and Women's Hebrew Association. It was organized in 1949.

When someone asked if people in Europe realize what America is like, one refugee member pondered and said: "The people back there know, but they can't believe it. I can hardly believe it myself."

Mountain Lions Are On Increase

KERNVILLE, Calif. — (AP) — Professional hunter Ronnie Vaughan says California mountain lions are on the increase because bounty prices have not kept up with inflation.

Vaughan brought in five pelts recently from the nearby mountains to prove the big cats are abundant. Fifteen years ago there were about 30 professional hunters, says Vaughan. Now there are only one or two left.

His uninflated bounty on the five pelts will amount to $510, he said.

WASHINGTON, March 12 — (AP)— The Senate Agriculture Committee has decided to start public hearings next Wednesday in its investigation of the Agriculture Department.

The committee was given $50,000 by the Senate to check into department operations after preliminary inquiry turned up evidences of government grain shortages estimated at $7 million.

Red China Buys Rubber

COLOMBO, Ceylon — (AP) — Communist China will be the biggest buyer of Ceylonese rubber, according to trade circles here.

This view is based on Peiping's recent purchases in Ceylon of this strategic material. The Russian ship, "Nikolaev", now in Colombo harbor, is expected to carry 2,000 tons of rubber to Chinese ports.

Austerity Hits U.S. Apple Trade

WENATCHEE, Wash.—(AP) — Apple men feel the "super-austerity" announced by Prime Minister Winston Churchill for Great Britain may mean the loss of central Washington's best apple export market.

So far this season, England has taken 1,141,053 boxes of United States apples in the most extensive export deal since pre-World War II days, an industry spokesman said. But the austerity program hits directly at such food items as apples,

World Today

By James Marlow
Associated Press
News Analyist

WASHINGTON, March 13 — (AP)— One professional politician, by himself, may sound amazingly convincing in his analysis of events. But two professionals are more amazing. They can examine the same event and produce opposite analyses.

That's why the non-experts, meaning practically everybody except the professionals, will have to sit back calmly and take with a grain of salt the claims and happy forecasts coming from the rival camps.

All day Wednesday in Washington and New Hampshire the pros pumped out their interpretation of the New Hampshire elections where Eisenhower trimmed Taft and Kefauver gave President Truman a stunning beating.

The Taftites tended to pooh-pooh the significance of the returns; the Eisenhower people attached the greatest importance to them; Kefauver thought he saw a bright highway for his presidential ambitions; Truman kept quiet.

• • •

AT THIS MOMENT it's impossible to say whether Kefauver's success this week will have any effect at all on the Democratic pros when they hold their Chicago convention in July to choose a presidential candidate.

In New Hampshire, the first of a number of state primaries, the people cast two kinds of votes: One for delegates to the Chicago convention to support a designated candidate, Kefauver or the President; and one in which they were able to express a direct personal preference between the two men themselves.

They emphatically chose Kefauver, on the two kinds of votes. But the most important question remains unanswered:

Were the New Hampshire Democrats expressing the feeling of the rest of the country's Democrats in not wanting Truman?

At this moment there's no indication the Democrats in other states holding primaries will have a chance to express a direct preference between the President and anyone else. For this reason:

Although Kefauver has entered a number of other primaries coming up, the President's name has not been entered in a single one where the voters could once again show direct preference between him and Kefauver.

• • •

THE SAME basic question applies to Eisenhower and Taft; were the New Hampshire Republicans expressing the feeling of the rest of the country's Republicans in hoosing the general over the senator? Eisenhower won in the direct preference vote and took all the delegates, too.

At this moment the Republicans in only one other state, New Jersey, will have an opportunity to show a direct preference between Taft and Eisenhower because that's the only state where the names of both men have been entered in a preferential primary.

In several states the two men oppose each other in a vote for delegates. This may indicate a degree of voter preference between the two although not in quite the same way as a direct preference vote on them.

Other states will have preferential primaries where Taft's name has been entered, such as in Illinois, but not Eisenhower's, or in Oregon, where Eisenhower's name has been entered, but not Taft's.

The New Hampshire results may goad or encourage the Taft and Eisenhower people to enter the name of their man in a primary against the rival.

I Feel 20 Years Younger Since Losing 131 Lbs.

Dayton Lady Praises Rennel, Health Improved

Rose Vogler, 2432 Nill Ave., Dayton 10, Ohio, writes: "When I started taking Rennel I weighed 322 lbs., and now I am down to 191 lbs. I have more pep and my health is much better than it has been in years. I am 71 years old, and before taking Rennel had tried three different types of reducing tablets without results. I certainly can praise Rennel and have enjoyed wonderful results. I feel like I am 50 years old instead of 71. Friends of mine are taking Rennel now, and also my niece since they have seen what it has done for me."

Imagine, eat plenty and lose weight with this simple yet effective amazing home recipe. After purchasing a bottle of Rennel from your druggist pour the contents into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. No diets to complicate your meal planning. No expensive vitamins to fortify your system from weakness while going without food for you can eat normally. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose pounds of bulky fat and help regain slender, more youthful curves—if reducible excess fat doesn't seem to disappear almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Insist on Rennel.

WASHINGTON, March 13 — (AP)— One professional politician, by himself, may sound amazingly convincing in his analysis of events. But two professionals are more amazing. They can examine the same event and produce opposite analyses.

That's why the non-experts, meaning practically everybody except the professionals, will have to sit back calmly and take with a grain of salt the claims and happy forecasts coming from the rival camps.

All day Wednesday in Washington and New Hampshire the pros pumped out their interpretation of the New Hampshire elections where Eisenhower trimmed Taft and Kefauver gave President Truman a stunning beating.

The Taftites tended to pooh-pooh the significance of the returns; the Eisenhower people attached the greatest importance to them; Kefauver thought he saw a bright highway for his presidential ambitions; Truman kept quiet.

• • •

AT THIS MOMENT it's impossible to say whether Kefauver's success this week will have any effect at all on the Democratic pros when they hold their Chicago convention in July to choose a presidential candidate.

In New Hampshire, the first of a number of state primaries, the people cast two kinds of votes: One for delegates to the Chicago convention to support a designated candidate, Kefauver or the President; and one in which they were able to express a direct personal preference between the two men themselves.

They emphatically chose Kefauver, on the two kinds of votes. But the most important question remains unanswered:

Were the New Hampshire Democrats expressing the feeling of the rest of the country's Democrats in not wanting Truman?

At this moment there's no indication the Democrats in other states holding primaries will have a chance to express a direct preference between the President and anyone else. For this reason:

Although Kefauver has entered a number of other primaries coming up, the President's name has not been entered in a single one where the voters could once again show direct preference between him and Kefauver.

• • •

THE SAME basic question applies to Eisenhower and Taft; were the New Hampshire Republicans expressing the feeling of the rest of the country's Republicans in hoosing the general over the senator? Eisenhower won in the direct preference vote and took all the delegates, too.

At this moment the Republicans in only one other state, New Jersey, will have an opportunity to show a direct preference between Taft and Eisenhower because that's the only state where the names of both men have been entered in a preferential primary.

In several states the two men oppose each other in a vote for delegates. This may indicate a degree of voter preference between the two although not in quite the same way as a direct preference vote on them.

Other states will have preferential primaries where Taft's name has been entered, such as in Illinois, but not Eisenhower's, or in Oregon, where Eisenhower's name has been entered, but not Taft's.

The New Hampshire results may goad or encourage the Taft and Eisenhower people to enter the name of their man in a primary against the rival.

Local Power Plants Slated For Improvements

Extensive improvements are to be made to two local generating plants in the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. network this year.

Officials of the network, which services some 215,000 customers in 23 Ohio counties, said improvements are due in 1952 in Picway and Walnut generating plants.

In Picway plant, a new instrument switchboard will be installed at a cost of about $123,525; new water treating equipment at $62,575; new laboratory for continuous testing of coal, $27,500; and miscellaneous equipment, $27,475.

Walnut's plant is slated for $99,150 in furnace repairs, $45,300 for completion of a 275,000-pound low-pressure boiler and $50,650 for miscellaneous improvements.

In all, the Columbus and Southern Ohio system plans $21,700,000 worth of improvements in its network this year.

ARTISTIC INSTITUTION

ULTRA-MODERNISTS and abstractionists have nothing but scorn for representational art—that is, art in which persons, landscapes and objects are recognizable as such. Yet no modernist has thus far attained the status of an institution, which Howard Chandler Christy had reached long before his death.

In his drawing, illustrating and painting, which began at the time of the Spanish-American War, Mr. Christy influenced and reflected the customs and tastes of the changing decades. His men were handsome, virile and dashing. His women were aristocratic, beautiful and piquant. His portraits, on which he concentrated in his later phases, were elegant and even distinguished.

It will be said that Mr. Christy's facile talent was not the highest form of art. So much the worse, then for art. He painted not to confuse and shock, but to give pleasure, to set standards and to assist good causes. His was a popular form of art, but not to be patronized on that account.

Genius, which is rare, is often unappreciated. Talent like Mr. Christy's, which all can understand, advances popular appreciation of the art of the pencil and the brush.

DANCING CLASS

DANCING, or what passes for dancing in this modern age, is now taught in a few simple lessons. One learns the steps, the shuffles and the oscillations, and that's that! It was not so in earlier decades, when the dancing class, as it was known, flourished.

There has died in Washington, D. C., Miss Minnie Hawke, age 77, whose dancing classes were an institution there for 50 years. From 1896 to 1946, when she retired, Miss Hawke taught the children of prominent Washington families to dance. One of her pupils was Miss Alice Roosevelt, now the widow of Nicholas Longworth.

At a dancing class, children put on their best clothes and best manners, for proper deportment was as much a part of the curriculum as learning the waltz, the two-step and the schottische. Manners are easier, less formal, now.

Whether this is progress or otherwise is a question that can be left to the social philosophers. There was, without doubt, a certain prissiness to manners decades ago, but to make a bow, to make a pleasant conversation and to thank a girl for dancing are graces not to be despised in this world of bad manners.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Dear Whittaker Chambers:

Your letter to your children, which millions of Americans have read and heard you read on radio and television, touched me to tears because I know what it costs a man to struggle with his soul.

There are many who never need to do that. They go through life by routine procedures. They are always in fashion and their minds readily adjust themselves to the mode of the moment. They accept ideas as they accept heroes, and throw them off with equal alacrity. Their souls are cellophaned.

They do not understand such a person as you are. We assumed that converts to a way of life like Paul or Augustine were ridiculed in their day, but no one was stupid enough to suggest that what they did was done to earn $75,000, or whatever the sum, writing magazine articles. Whoever accuses you of that lacks knowledge of the human soul; they have never read Job and have never been twisted by the devil.

Small minds and weak memories forget that in 1939, when you were in no manner protected by the Statute of Limitations, you laid your case before A. A. Berle Jr., then assistant secretary of state. I have never understood why Berle did not have you arrested. You had spied on your own country and you told him so, and you could not and did not claim immunity. You risked arrest and imprisonment. Many of our friends, who have also served their country after conversion, waited until they were immune to punishment. But you did not.

Those who now attack you or ridicule you or question your motives have forgotten that. Such persons as myself, who have watched the Russian conspiracy since 1917, understand you. Most of those who sneer at you have no anti-Communist record.

For just as there is a Communist record, so is there an anti-Communist record. Today, it is fashionable to be anti-Communist and to beat one's breast and shout, "I have always been anti-Communist." That may or may not be true in particular instances, but it is possible to establish the record, since 1917, of those who, in some marked manner, have fought Communism. Whenever I come across one of these breast-beaters, I ask, "What is in the record about this person, say, prior to 1945 or 1939 or even 1933"

Usually, nothing is to be found. The reason for their ferocious attitude toward you is that quite apart from the poverty of their spirit which prevents them from understanding the grace of conversion, they also are envious of your unquestionable services to your country as a penitent.

Many of them ask how they could have known what to do, when such martyrs as Ben Stolberg and Jim McGuinness gave their lives for the cause of America. Many of these mugwumps sat by and saw men and women blacklisted in magazines, on radio, in the movies, in all walks of life, because they hated Communism.

Now, they come forward and criticize such persons as you and Louis Budenz and Elizabeth Bentley and all those who, having been led astray by Marxism, witnessed to the truth, achieved conversion and at the risk of the meanest of all human weapons, ridicule, served country and God.

Let Doctor Decide The Best Treatment For Plantar Wart

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

FEW conditions can be as disturbing and irritating as a wart on the sole of the foot. This is known as a plantar wart.

The usual cause of such warts is improperly fitted shoes. A plantar wart may also be due to a foreign body inside the shoe which irritates the sole.

Many methods have been devised for the treatment of this condition, but most of them give only temporary relief, without any permanent cure. The use of carbon dioxide snow—dry ice—has proved effective in many cases.

New method of treatment, recently devised, may prove better than any other tried so far. Even before describing it, however, I want to emphasize that it should be carried out only by a physician.

The doctor first pares down the wart as much as possible without causing bleeding. A bandage of medicated elastic tape is then applied over the area, starting with the top of the foot and going around the pared wart.

After two weeks, the wart is again pared, and the tape replaced. Usually the wart disappears after two or three applications of tape.

Resin Solution

In a few instances, this treatment will not remove the wart. Then the doctor may have to rub in a solution of a resin called podophyllin before applying the tape. It may be necessary to repeat this treatment several times in order to remove the wart permanently. Weekly treatments may even be necessary.

Sudden, severe tenderness over the area will tell the patient that the wart is being destroyed and is ready to come out.

Remember that it can be dangerous for a lay person to try to remove a wart in the way described. The doctor will decide in each case the best form of treatment to use.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

B. S. L.: What causes nervousness and what can I do to cure it?

Answer: Usually, nervousness is caused by mental and emotional conflicts which cannot be solved by the individual alone. Many times, talking over the problem with a psychiatrist is of help.

Uncle Sam, we read, has given up the idea of holding new houses to just a bathroom and a half. What good is a semi-bath to a public that's always being warned via radio-TV commercials not to be "half safe?"

Morey Amsterdam says that being a famous comedian isn't always what it's cracked up to be. People are always expecting a man who has the reputation for being funny to make them laugh, regardless of the circumstances. As an example, Morey was run over by a taxicab one afternoon, sustained a black eye, several contusions, and a sprained ankle.

As he limped toward his house, a friend stopped him and asked, "Whassa idea of limping that way?' 'I'm in agony," groaned Morey. "I just gave my ankle a very bad strain. Would not be surprised if the x-ray showed it was broken." "Hmphh," sneered the friend, "What's so funny about that?"

CHAPTER THIRTY

THE WANTED order on Hunt Brin had gone out hours ago. The chances were that Brin already knew he was wanted. That meant the case was going into the stretch. Liddell grinned glumly, wondered if he'd live long enough to see it come in under the wire.

Bryant Park across the street was almost dark. Liddell had failed to put on the lights in the office, sat in semi-darkness, staring out onto the city below.

The phone started to jangle impatiently on the desk behind him. Liddell let it ring three times, picked it up.

The voice on the other end was low, unidentifiable. "Liddell?"

"That's right. Where are you, Brin?"

There was a slight pause. "So you were expecting me to call, eh? Well, you won't be disappointed, peeper. I'm coming for you."

Liddell nodded. "That's what I'm waiting for. Now maybe we can have that talk I suggested this afternoon."

"I hear it's tough to do any talking with a hole in your head. You think I'm standing still for this frame?"

Liddell laughed into the mouthpiece. "That's real smart. Have me bumped off. That'll put you in the soup for real. Get smart. Let's deal."

"What've you got to deal with, peeper?"

Liddell shrugged. "Your hide. I'm the only one that knows how you were framed with my gun. I could keep you out of the hot seat."

The voice on the other end became hesitant. "Go on."

"You tell me what I want to know and I'll take you off the hook on the gun. If anything happens to me, there's nothing that can keep you from frying." Liddell chuckled. "You may not know it, but you've got a pretty big stake in me. You'd better start hoping I don't even catch cold."

"How do I know I can trust you?" The metallic voice was undecided. "How do I know this isn't another fast one like the gun?"

"I want to see Goldy. I'm not interested in putting you on the spot." He could hear the heavy breathing of the man on the other end of the phone. "Why cover for somebody else? Sure, by holding out on me, you'll be a hero to them—a well cooked hero. Well?"

"You know Marty's in the Village?"

"I can find it."

"Meet me there in an hour. Come alone and don't try anything. They're getting set to tag me for a killing I didn't do. Cross me and I'll give them a good reason."

The receiver clicked in his ear, Liddell returned it to his desk. He checked his watch, walked over to the cupboard against the wall, selected a snub nosed .38 from his arsenal, slid it into his jacket pocket.

The neon sign drenched the sidewalks with a dull red glow. It flickered fitfully in the drizzle, announced to the public "Marty's Place." The door was three steps up from Waverly Place, opened into a small vestibule that had been converted into a check room. A blond presided over the coats hanging on the wall.

Johnny Liddell walked through into a huge room that served as a combination barroom and dance floor. The lights were low, orange colored, spilled deep shadows all over the place. A small bar was set against the far wall, was empty except for two Marines and a heavy set man.

Liddell ambled over, leaned on the bar. The bartender was heavy, fleshy.

"Bourbon and water," Liddell told him.

The bartender bared discolored teeth in what passed for a smile. "Ain't seen you around here before. Looking for somebody special?"

"Yeah, friend. I'm looking for somebody special. I'll call you when I need you."

Liddell leaned on the bar. He turned at a touch on his elbow. It was a thin young man with long, wavy black hair. He was wearing a powder blue suit and a red tie.

"Are you Liddell?" he asked.

Liddell nodded, looked the boy over insolently.

"Will you come with me?" he requested, turned on his heel, led the way through the welter of tables.

Liddell waited until his guide was halfway across the room, followed slowly. At the far end of the room a disguised stairway led to an upper floor. At the top of the stairs, there was a long hallway with a row of closed doors. Voices, the shuffling of cards, the rattle of dice, were faintly discernible.

The young chap led the way down the hall to a closed door, knocked. "It's I," he called.

After a moment, a key scraped in the lock, the door opened a crack, then as though the viewer was satisfied, the door swung open wide. Tim, Brin's bodyguard, glared at Liddell. "Come in, peeper." Inside the room, Hunt Brin sat, taking short, nervous puffs out of a cigaret.

Liddell stepped into the room, nodded to Brin. The door swung shut behind him. "Get your tough boy out of here, Brin, or we don't talk," Liddell told him.

Tim's voice grated in his ear from behind. "You're in no spot to be handing out orders, Liddell. Besides, you and me have a little deal to finish up."

Liddell turned negligently. "We can have our dance some other time, Junior. Right now, we're busy."

The bodyguard's lips flattened back over his teeth. "You asked for it, peeper!" His hand flashed to his pocket, came up with a switch knife. "We'll see how tough you really are."

"Cut it out, Tim." Hunt Brin's voice lashed out like a whip. "Cut it out or I'll let you have it."

The rage drained out of Tim's face, to be replaced by shock. Liddell turned to see a .38 in Brin's hand aimed at the bodyguard's middle.

"You crazy, Hunt? This is Tim. You wouldn't?"

The gun muzzle never wavered. "I told you this guy can't be hurt. He's got to get me off the hook on the murder rap. If it's going to be you or me, Tim, don't start reading any continued stories." He waved the gun contemptuously. "You better wait outside."

Tim hesitated, hopscotched his eyes from Brin to Liddell and back. "Okay, Hunt. You're the boss." He returned the knife to a jacket pocket, opened the door, stalked out.

"You can turn around now, Liddell," Brin growled. He still held the gun. "You can push your luck too far. Some day you're going to push it too far."

"That'll be tough on you, chum," Liddell grinned. "Tougher than on me."

Brin's face went white under its tan. He made a half hearted attempt at the lazy smile, gave it up as a bad job. "You've got aces back to back, probably," he conceded. "But take the advice of a professional gambler. Don't ever push too hard on one pair."

Liddell nodded, found an armchair, dropped into it. "I've done a little gambling in my time, too. I know a few rules of my own. Such as never bluff when there's no limit on table stakes."

news behind the news

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON, March 13—The day when atomic energy will supplant present-day forms of fuel in industry, power and transportation is extremely distant, according to engineers working on commercial adaptation under government contracts.

It is extremely doubtful whether anybody save youngsters with lucky lifelines will see the time when an atomic "pill" will propel automobiles, trains, civilian planes or trans-Atlantic liners. It is also doubtful whether homes will be lighted and heated, and mechanical appliances operated, by the neutrons which blew up Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

The weightiness of this protective covering obviously obviates the application of A-material to automobiles, trains and commercial planes, although this difficulty may be overcome some day. But even suppose that scientists develop a casing sufficiently light, as they are hoping to do with military planes and subs, so that atomic energy can be used in transportation, the prospect raises difficult and dangerous possibilities.

What would have happened to the people of Elizabeth, N.J., if the planes which crashed in congested areas there had been powered by atomic energy gases?

ARTISTIC INSTITUTION

ULTRA-MODERNISTS and abstractionists have nothing but scorn for representational art—that is, art in which persons, landscapes and objects are recognizable as such. Yet no modernist has thus far attained the status of an institution, which Howard Chandler Christy had reached long before his death.

In his drawing, illustrating and painting, which began at the time of the Spanish-American War, Mr. Christy influenced and reflected the customs and tastes of the changing decades. His men were handsome, virile and dashing. His women were aristocratic, beautiful and piquant. His portraits, on which he concentrated in his later phases, were elegant and even distinguished.

It will be said that Mr. Christy's facile talent was not the highest form of art. So much the worse, then for art. He painted not to confuse and shock, but to give pleasure, to set standards and to assist good causes. His was a popular form of art, but not to be patronized on that account.

Genius, which is rare, is often unappreciated. Talent like Mr. Christy's, which all can understand, advances popular appreciation of the art of the pencil and the brush.

DANCING CLASS

DANCING, or what passes for dancing in this modern age, is now taught in a few simple lessons. One learns the steps, the shuffles and the oscillations, and that's that! It was not so in earlier decades, when the dancing class, as it was known, flourished.

There has died in Washington, D. C., Miss Minnie Hawke, age 77, whose dancing classes were an institution there for 50 years. From 1896 to 1946, when she retired, Miss Hawke taught the children of prominent Washington families to dance. One of her pupils was Miss Alice Roosevelt, now the widow of Nicholas Longworth.

At a dancing class, children put on their best clothes and best manners, for proper deportment was as much a part of the curriculum as learning the waltz, the two-step and the schottische. Manners are easier, less formal, now.

Whether this is progress or otherwise is a question that can be left to the social philosophers. There was, without doubt, a certain prissiness to manners decades ago, but to make a bow, to make a pleasant conversation and to thank a girl for dancing are graces not to be despised in this world of bad manners.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Dear Whittaker Chambers:

Your letter to your children, which millions of Americans have read and heard you read on radio and television, touched me to tears because I know what it costs a man to struggle with his soul.

There are many who never need to do that. They go through life by routine procedures. They are always in fashion and their minds readily adjust themselves to the mode of the moment. They accept ideas as they accept heroes, and throw them off with equal alacrity. Their souls are cellophaned.

They do not understand such a person as you are. We assumed that converts to a way of life like Paul or Augustine were ridiculed in their day, but no one was stupid enough to suggest that what they did was done to earn $75,000, or whatever the sum, writing magazine articles. Whoever accuses you of that lacks knowledge of the human soul; they have never read Job and have never been twisted by the devil.

Small minds and weak memories forget that in 1939, when you were in no manner protected by the Statute of Limitations, you laid your case before A. A. Berle Jr., then assistant secretary of state. I have never understood why Berle did not have you arrested. You had spied on your own country and you told him so, and you could not and did not claim immunity. You risked arrest and imprisonment. Many of our friends, who have also served their country after conversion, waited until they were immune to punishment. But you did not.

Those who now attack you or ridicule you or question your motives have forgotten that. Such persons as myself, who have watched the Russian conspiracy since 1917, understand you. Most of those who sneer at you have no anti-Communist record.

For just as there is a Communist record, so is there an anti-Communist record. Today, it is fashionable to be anti-Communist and to beat one's breast and shout, "I have always been anti-Communist." That may or may not be true in particular instances, but it is possible to establish the record, since 1917, of those who, in some marked manner, have fought Communism. Whenever I come across one of these breast-beaters, I ask, "What is in the record about this person, say, prior to 1945 or 1939 or even 1933"

Usually, nothing is to be found. The reason for their ferocious attitude toward you is that quite apart from the poverty of their spirit which prevents them from understanding the grace of conversion, they also are envious of your unquestionable services to your country as a penitent.

Many of them ask how they could have known what to do, when such martyrs as Ben Stolberg and Jim McGuinness gave their lives for the cause of America. Many of these mugwumps sat by and saw men and women blacklisted in magazines, on radio, in the movies, in all walks of life, because they hated Communism.

Now, they come forward and criticize such persons as you and Louis Budenz and Elizabeth Bentley and all those who, having been led astray by Marxism, witnessed to the truth, achieved conversion and at the risk of the meanest of all human weapons, ridicule, served country and God.

Let Doctor Decide The Best Treatment For Plantar Wart

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

FEW conditions can be as disturbing and irritating as a wart on the sole of the foot. This is known as a plantar wart.

The usual cause of such warts is improperly fitted shoes. A plantar wart may also be due to a foreign body inside the shoe which irritates the sole.

Many methods have been devised for the treatment of this condition, but most of them give only temporary relief, without any permanent cure. The use of carbon dioxide snow—dry ice—has proved effective in many cases.

New method of treatment, recently devised, may prove better than any other tried so far. Even before describing it, however, I want to emphasize that it should be carried out only by a physician.

The doctor first pares down the wart as much as possible without causing bleeding. A bandage of medicated elastic tape is then applied over the area, starting with the top of the foot and going around the pared wart.

After two weeks, the wart is again pared, and the tape replaced. Usually the wart disappears after two or three applications of tape.

Resin Solution

In a few instances, this treatment will not remove the wart. Then the doctor may have to rub in a solution of a resin called podophyllin before applying the tape. It may be necessary to repeat this treatment several times in order to remove the wart permanently. Weekly treatments may even be necessary.

Sudden, severe tenderness over the area will tell the patient that the wart is being destroyed and is ready to come out.

Remember that it can be dangerous for a lay person to try to remove a wart in the way described. The doctor will decide in each case the best form of treatment to use.

B. S. L.: What causes nervousness and what can I do to cure it?

Answer: Usually, nervousness is caused by mental and emotional conflicts which cannot be solved by the individual alone. Many times, talking over the problem with a psychiatrist is of help.

CHAPTER THIRTY

THE WANTED order on Hunt Brin had gone out hours ago. The chances were that Brin already knew he was wanted. That meant the case was going into the stretch. Liddel grinned glumly, wondered if he'd live long enough to see it come in under the wire.

Bryant Park across the street was almost dark. Liddell had failed to put on the lights in the office, sat in semi-darkness, staring out onto the city below.

The phone started to jangle impatiently on the desk behind him. Liddell let it ring three times, picked it up.

The voice on the other end was low, unidentifiable. "Liddell?"

"That's right. Where are you, Brin?"

There was a slight pause. "So you were expecting me to call, eh? Well, you won't be disappointed, peeper. I'm coming for you."

Liddell nodded. "That's what I'm waiting for. Now maybe we can have that talk I suggested this afternoon."

"I hear it's tough to do any talking with a hole in your head. You think I'm standing still for this frame?"

Liddell laughed into the mouthpiece. "That's real smart. Have me bumped off. That'll put you in the soup for real. Get smart. Let's deal."

"What've you got to deal with, peeper?"

Liddell shrugged. "Your hide. I'm the only one that knows how you were framed with my gun. I could keep you out of the hot seat."

The voice on the other end became hesitant. "Go on."

"You tell me what I want to know and I'll take you off the hook on the gun. If anything happens to me, there's nothing that can keep you from frying." Liddell chuckled. "You may not know it, but you've got a pretty big stake in me. You'd better start hoping I don't even catch cold."

"How do I know I can trust you?" The metallic voice was undecided. "How do I know this isn't another fast one like the gun?"

"I want to see Goldy. I'm not interested in putting you on the spot." He could hear the heavy breathing of the man on the other end of the phone. "Why cover for somebody else? Sure, by holding out on me, you'll be a hero to them—a well cooked hero. Well?"

"You know Marty's in the Village?"

"I can find it."

"Meet me there in an hour. Come alone and don't try anything. They're getting set to tag me for a killing I didn't do. Cross me and I'll give them a good reason."

The receiver clicked in his ear, Liddell returned it to his desk. He checked his watch, walked over to the cupboard against the wall, selected a snub nosed .38 from his arsenal, slid it into his jacket pocket.

The neon sign drenched the sidewalks with a dull red glow. It flickered fitfully in the drizzle, announced to the public "Marty's Place." The door was three steps up from Waverly Place, opened into a small vestibule that had been converted into a check room. A blond presided over the coats hanging on the wall.

Johnny Liddell walked through into a huge room that served as a combination barroom and dance floor. The lights were low, orange colored, spilled deep shadows all over the place. A small bar was set against the far wall, was empty except for two Marines and a heavy set man.

Liddell ambled over, leaned on the bar. The bartender was heavy, fleshy.

"Bourbon and water," Liddell told him.

The bartender bared discolored teeth in what passed for a smile. "Ain't seen you around here before. Looking for somebody special?"

"Yeah, friend. I'm looking for somebody special. I'll call you when I need you."

Liddell leaned on the bar. He turned at a touch on his elbow. It was a thin young man with long, wavy black hair. He was wearing a powder blue suit and a red tie.

"Are you Liddell?" he asked.

Liddell nodded, looked the boy over insolently.

"Will you come with me?" he requested, turned on his heel, led the way through the welter of tables.

Liddell waited until his guide was halfway across the room, followed slowly. At the far end of the room a disguised stairway led to an upper floor. At the top of the stairs, there was a long hallway with a row of closed doors. Voices, the shuffling of cards, the rattle of dice, were faintly discernible.

The young chap led the way down the hall to a closed door, knocked. "It's I," he called.

After a moment, a key scraped in the lock, the door opened a crack, then as though the viewer was satisfied, the door swung open wide. Tim, Brin's bodyguard, glared at Liddell. "Come in, peeper." Inside the room, Hunt Brin sat, taking short, nervous puffs out of a cigaret.

Liddell stepped into the room, nodded to Brin. The door swung shut behind him. "Get your tough boy out of here, Brin, or we don't talk," Liddell told him.

Tim's voice grated in his ear from behind. "You're in no spot to be handing out orders, Liddell. Besides, you and me have a little deal to finish up."

Liddell turned negligently. "We can have our dance some other time, Junior. Right now, we're busy."

The bodyguard's lips flattened back over his teeth. "You asked for it, peeper!" His hand flashed to his pocket, came up with a switch knife. "We'll see how tough you really are."

"Cut it out, Tim." Hunt Brin's voice lashed out like a whip. "Cut it out or I'll let you have it."

The rage drained out of Tim's face, to be replaced by shock. Liddell turned to see a .38 in Brin's hand aimed at the bodyguard's middle.

"You crazy, Hunt? This is Tim. You wouldn't?"

The gun muzzle never wavered. "I told you this guy can't be hurt. He's got to get me off the hook on the murder rap. If it's going to be you or me, Tim, don't start reading any continued stories." He waved the gun contemptuously. "You better wait outside."

Tim hesitated, hopscotched his eyes from Brin to Liddell and back. "Okay, Hunt. You're the boss." He returned the knife to a jacket pocket, opened the door, stalked out.

"You can turn around now, Liddell," Brin growled. He still held the gun. "You can push your luck too far. Some day you're going to push it too far."

"That'll be tough on you, chum," Liddell grinned. "Tougher than on me."

Brin's face went white under its tan. He made a half hearted attempt at the lazy smile, gave it up as a bad job. "You've got aces back to back, probably," he conceded. "But take the advice of a professional gambler. Don't ever push too hard on one pair."

Liddell nodded, found an armchair, dropped into it. "I've done a little gambling in my time, too. I know a few rules of my own. Such as never bluff when there's no limit on table stakes."

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, March 13—The day when atomic energy will supplant present-day forms of fuel in industry, power and transportation is extremely distant, according to engineers working on commercial adaptation under government contracts.

It is extremely doubtful whether anybody save youngsters with lucky lifelines will see the time when an atomic "pill" will propel automobiles, trains, civilian planes or trans-Atlantic liners. It is also doubtful whether homes will be lighted and heated, and mechanical appliances operated, by the neutrons which blew up Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

* * *

IMPORTANCE — This finding has more than an academic aspect. It is of everyday, bread-and-butter importance to millions or workers and investors, who might lose jobs and income, if atomic energy could be installed overnight in our industrial, utility and transportation systems.

In emphasizing the long delay inherent in commercializing atomic energy, both Gordon Dean, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, and Senator Brien McMahon of Connecticut, who heads the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, have quieted the fears voiced in many letters to both bodies.

It is true, as recently explained a boost to federalized power when he minimized the idea of substituting atomic force for hydroelectricity in his recent letter to Representative Henry M. Jackson of Washington. Nevertheless, engineering data as of the moment supports Mr. Dean.

It refuses to be pinned down and catalogued and kept static. But, as of now, here are a few reasons why peacetime civilization as we live it may not be disrupted overnight by advent of an atomic age:

The reasons are financial and physical. As of now, only the federal government can afford to spend the vast sums required to harness this costlier-than-gold stuff.

It must drop to a lower figure than now envisaged by engineers before it will justify scrapping the vast investment in current forms of propulsion and generation.

That consideration also applies to the billions which have been sunk by millions of large and funds, insurance companies and individuals — in our industrial, power and transportation structures.

What would happen, for instance to reserves and stocks of these corporations, if a government controlled or licensing atomic energy agency were suddenly to destroy the value of their investments.

Air Force Aide Enters Plea Of Innocent

DAYTON, March 13—(AP)—Robert G. Hollifield of Dayton, former civilian designer at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, has pleaded innocent to charges he sold contract favors.

Hollifield was indicted on four counts by a U. S. district grand jury, which accused him of selling favors to a Chicago manufacturing representative for $500.

The Chicago representative, William J. Opper, was supposed to be arraigned on a four-count indictment accusing him of buying favors but he failed to appear before U. S. Judge Robert Nevin.

Frank J. Richter of Cincinnati, assistant U. S. attorney, told the court Opper had been picked up in Chicago and that a U. S. commissioner set a new arraignment date of March 28. That is the date for Hollifield's trial. Both men are accused in a fifth count of conspiracy.

In other arraignments before Judge Nevin, Leland H. Wright of Springfield, accused of gambling without a federal tax stamp, pleaded innocent. His trial, too, was set for March 28.

Air Force Aide Enters Plea Of Innocent

DAYTON, March 13—(AP)—Robert G. Hollifield of Dayton, former civilian designer at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, has pleaded innocent to charges he sold contract favors.

Hollifield was indicted on four counts by a U. S. district grand jury, which accused him of selling favors to a Chicago manufacturing representative for $500.

INDEPENDENT VOTERS HOLD KEY TO THE WHITE HOUSE

Mr. and Mrs. Independent Voter could wreck either political party.

By HENRY C. NICHOLAS
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The 1952 presidential election will be unique in the history of the nation. Experienced politicians and newspapermen agree that our next President will be elected, not because he was nominated by either the Republican or Democratic party, but because he is the choice of what is possibly the most powerful political organization in the country—the party of independent voters.

The trend toward independent voting has been steadily increasing in the United States since the beginning of this century. Between 1900 and 1936 the number of independent voters increased by an average of 1.5 per cent from one presidential election to another, according to a study made by the American Society of Sociology.

Since 1936 studies have revealed that the number of independent voters—citizens who feel no strong allegiance to either the Republican or Democratic party—has grown so rapidly that for the first time in the history of the nation it can be said that the United States is now operating under a three-party system.

The surprising election of Truman and defeat of Dewey in the last presidential election, after virtually all polls had indicated a different result, puzzled the nation simply because this revolution in our political life had not been appreciated.

• • •

THAT A political revolution has occurred is now fully understood and appreciated by the politicians of the two parties which have long controlled the destiny of this nation.

"There are not enough Republicans or Democrats in the United States to elect a President without additional support," said Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., at a recent meeting of the Republican national committee.

If every Republican voted for the Republican candidate, said Lodge, he would get only 31 per cent of the vote. For either party to elect its candidate it must select one who will appeal to the great strength of the independent voters.

On the basis of a voting population of about 55 million the most recent survey indicates that there are about 22 million Democrats, about 18 million Republicans, and about 16 million independents. It is conceded, however, that these figures do not fully reveal the strength of the party of independent voters.

The fact is that American voters are much more independent than they think they are. Whenever a sampling of party strength has been taken, and voters are asked what party they consider themselves a member, about 20 per cent of the voters describe themselves as independents.

However, when a study is made of the results of presidential elections, it has been found that there is a considerable percentage who reported themselves members of one party, but who on election date when casting their votes in secret affiliate themselves with another party.

In addition there is the momentous fact that the United States which leads the world in so many ways, also leads the world in the failure of its citizens to vote at elections. Here is the shameful showing made by the United States in comparison with the showing made by other nations:

The percentage of eligible voters who went to the polls in recent elections was 90 per cent in Belgium, 89 per cent in Italy, 82 per cent in Britain, and 75 per cent in France.

• • •

IN THE first democratic election in its history Japan showed a percentage of 70 per cent.

In the United States in the Truman-Dewey election of 1948 the percentage was only 51 per cent. The result was that a President was elected by a majority of what was almost a minority of the citizens of the United States eligible to vote.

According to census figures there are between 30 and 35 million American citizens, a much larger number than belongs to any political party, who are eligible to vote but who regularly disenfranchise themselves by failure to vote at each presidential election.

Experienced politicians and learned sociologists who have studied this problem of these voluntarily disenfranchised voters, while differing on many points do agree on one point.

They do agree that if through some miracle this great mass of American citizens should become aroused over the destiny of this nation and went to the polls to vote, like some atomic explosion, the result might be the smashing of one or even both of the two great political parties that have run the United States.

Moscow Scorns Western Tango

MOSCOW, March 13—(AP)—The West's slow foxtrots steam up sex impulses and tangos are "grinding and tearful," the newspaper Soviet Art says in a fiery attack on Russians who want Western popular music remade to fit the Soviet scheme.

The paper is the official journal of the Soviet Committee on Art, which previously has made vigorous declarations against jazz music and Western dances. Soviet Art described the tango as music "without kin or tribe" and said slow foxtrots are "erotic."

In China, the mourning color is white.

You're off in a Swirl of Power!

WE'RE willing to wager that not one person in a hundred knows what really goes on inside an automobile engine—so let's take this by easy stages.

The instant you nudge Buick's Fireball 8 Engine into action—a whole string of things starts to happen.

Eight sparks begin to crackle in well-timed sequence. Eight pistons start gliding up and down with rhythmic precision. Eight pairs of valves dance open and closed—to let fuel charges in, exhaust gases out of cylinder after cylinder.

All right, you say, what's so complex about that? Can't anyone build an engine that does this to perfection?

Well, we'd better add, these things happen at the rate of more than 10,000 times per mile—and that's 100 times per second at 35 miles an hour!

So—it's important to know that Buick uses a deep-breathing valve-in-head design that shoots a fuel charge in—cleans exhaust gases out—in a hurry.

It's important to know that all the power released by the fuel concentrates its driving force right on the head of each Buick piston. (Everyone who has recently built "new" high-compression engines copied this "Buick first.")

But most important of all—Buick adds one more twist which others still haven't copied.

Every charge of fuel rushing into a Buick engine becomes a twisting, swirling, high-compressed ball that flashes with sudden, consuming completeness the instant the spark sets it afire.

And to add this all up: clean, complete combustion—10,000 times per mile—is the secret of getting more power—more miles—from each gallon of gasoline.

So we're not simply using picture words when we tell you that Buick—and only Buick—has a FIREBALL ENGINE—or that you're off in a swirl of power with one of these high-powered performers under the hood.

1952 has brought a lot of sparkling new improvements which you'll want to see and admire when you come to our showrooms.

But the thrill of thrills is still what you and a Buick—and a Fireball 8 Engine—can do out on the road. When do you want to try a sample?

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice.

Old Mailboxes Are Replaced

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(AP)—Ever wonder why you rarely see a "wet paint" sign on a U.S. mail box?

Complications like sticky fingers and smudged clothes are avoided by replacing the mail box with a newly painted one when a paint job is needed.

In inland areas this is done every two or three years. In coastal cities replacement is made annually. Last year it took 9,000 gallons of quick-drying enamel to keep the nation's mail boxes spruced up.

INDEPENDENT VOTERS HOLD KEY TO THE WHITE HOUSE

Mr. and Mrs. Independent Voter could wreck either political party.

By HENRY C. NICHOLAS
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The 1952 presidential election will be unique in the history of the nation. Experienced politicians and newspapermen agree that our next President will be elected, not because he was nominated by either the Republican or Democratic party, but because he is the choice of what is possibly the most powerful political organization in the country—the party of independent voters.

The trend toward independent voting has been steadily increasing in the United States since the beginning of this century. Between 1900 and 1936 the number of independent voters increased by an average of 1.5 per cent from one presidential election to another, according to a study made by the American Society of Sociology.

Since 1936 studies have revealed that the number of independent voters—citizens who feel no strong allegiance to either the Republican or Democratic party—has grown so rapidly that for the first time in the history of the nation it can be said that the United States is now operating under a three-party system.

The surprising election of Truman and defeat of Dewey in the last presidential election, after virtually all polls had indicated a different result, puzzled the nation simply because this revolution in our political life had not been appreciated.

* * *

THAT A political revolution has occurred is now fully understood and appreciated by the politicians of the two parties which have long controlled the destiny of this nation.

"There are not enough Republicans or Democrats in the United States to elect a President without additional support," said Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., at a recent meeting of the Republican national committee.

If every Republican voted for the Republican candidate, said Lodge, he would get only 31 per cent of the vote. For either party to elect its candidate it must select one who will appeal to the great strength of the independent voters.

On the basis of a voting population of about 55 million the most recent survey indicates that there are about 22 million Democrats, about 18 million Republicans, and about 16 million independents. It is conceded, however, that these figures do not fully reveal the strength of the party of independent voters.

The fact is that American voters are much more independent than they think they are. Whenever a sampling of party strength has been taken, and voters are asked what party they consider themselves a member, about 20 per cent of the voters describe themselves as independents.

However, when a study is made of the results of presidential elections, it has been found that there is a considerable percentage who reported themselves members of one party, but who on election date when casting their votes in secret affiliate themselves with another party.

In addition there is the momentous fact that the United States which leads the world in so many ways, also leads the world in the failure of its citizens to vote at elections. Here is the shameful showing made by the United States in comparison with the showing made by other nations:

The percentage of eligible voters who went to the polls in recent elections was 90 per cent in Belgium, 89 per cent in Italy, 82 per cent in Britain, and 75 per cent in France.

* * *

IN THE first democratic election in its history Japan showed a percentage of 70 per cent.

In the United States in the Truman-Dewey election of 1948 the percentage was only 51 per cent. The result was that a President was elected by a majority of what was almost a minority of the citizens of the United States eligible to vote.

According to census figures there are between 30 and 35 million American citizens, a much larger number than belongs to any political party, who are eligible to vote but who regularly disenfranchise themselves by failure to vote at each presidential election.

Experienced politicians and learned sociologists who have studied this problem of these voluntarily disenfranchised voters, while differing on many points do agree on one point.

They do agree that if through some miracle this great mass of American citizens should become aroused over the destiny of this nation and went to the polls to vote, like some atomic explosion, the result might be the smashing of one or even both of the two great political parties that have run the United States.

In This Freest Land, Military Censorship Eyed

Question Is: Where Does Security End And Coverup Of Varied Mistakes Begin

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of three articles concerning the vast amount of censorship of public information being imposed right here in the free-est land of all—and perhaps right in your own community.

NEW YORK, March 13—(AP)—Military censorship poses the question of where security ends and the coverup of mistakes begins, particularly on the home front.

Newspapers in their constant battle against unwarranted suppression of news have no quarrel with omitting news that jeopardizes the nation's security or the life of a single serviceman or civilian.

They demonstrated that during World War II by their careful adsorship.

It is when "security" is invoked to cover up something that appears to have no connection with security that friction arises.

• • •

HERE IS AN actual example of how military and newspaper thinking can conflict:

Suppose you are a sports fan and you turn to the baseball standings. You see this list:

New York. . . .
Chicago. . . .
Another Team. . . .
Philadelphia. . .

You might be inclined to wonder who "Another Team" is.

This was a problem confronting the sports editor of the Beloit (Wis.) Daily News.

He reported that the 10th Air Force Radar Station had decided to enter a team in the Central Wisconsin Baseball League, whereupon the commanding officer demanded that his nine be known simply as "Another Team."

The officer's idea, no doubt, was to conceal knowledge that the radar existed. The newspaper's position was that this hardly could be concealed because the station's antenna was easily visible to anybody in the area.

The Navy conceded recently that "too often newspapers are met with evasiveness, double-talk or outright refusal to cooperate." It sent a public relations newsletter to responsible officers reminding them that "the Navy belongs to the public" and urged them to give whenever possible "frank, honest answers to questions from newspapers and wire services."

The letter declared truth is the best policy "even when the truth hurts."

• • •

THE AIR FORCE changed its regulations on photographing air crashes this month after a campaign waged by James S. Pope, chairman of the American Society of Newspaper Editors' Freedom of Information Committee.

Pope was aroused by incidents of Air Force police prohibiting news photographers—sometimes by physical measures—from taking pictures of crashed planes on non-military property.

He argued Air Force regulations ignored civil authority and gave the military a fancied right to declare martial law on civilian territory. He contended this right could be granted only by civilian authorities.

The Air Force no longer "prohibits" the taking of pictures outside military reservations.

But if a photographer takes pictures of secret equipment and refused to surrender them, he will be warned that under federal law he can be fined $10,000 and imprisoned for 10 years. If he still refuses, the FBI will be called in.

When no secret equipment is exposed to view "consent will be given for the taking of photographs by civilian photographers" under the new regulations.

Pope contended the old regulations purported to give authority to military men to "forbid" photographs even when no secret items were involved.

• • •

HE STRESSED that "no newspaper wants to risk breaching military security" but that neither did they wish to see the military encroach upon civilian authority in the guise of security considerations where none existed.

Pope had become aroused on the subject when Air Force police seized film from a photographer's camera at a Minnesota crash scene.

Declaring no security was involved, he threatened a damage suit against the Air Force.

He made similar complaints when Air Force police "outrageously and with physical force" interfered with coverage of a crash near Portland, Ore., and when they "roughed up" photographers at Honolulu covering Gen. Douglas MacArthur's return from Japan.

An example of how officials and the press differ on what constitutes security cropped up at one of President Truman's recent press conferences.

A reporter wanted to know why maps showing atomic installations were hung on airport bulletin boards.

The President rebuked the reporter. He said such questions only attracted attention to the maps.

The maps are intended to guide pilots so they won't fly over such installations.

Was security jeopardized in hanging the maps on bulletin boards in the first place, or in asking how come?

It depends on the point of view.

(Tomorrow: The President stirs a controversy).

TOSSED ABOUT by raging floodwaters, vehicles face every which way in Van Nuys, Cal. Mud and silt nine inches deep cover the street and sidewalks. No serious damage was reported. (International)

Convicted Pair Tries Again For New Trial

NEW YORK, March 13—(AP)—Atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, sentenced to die for plotting to transmit secrets to Russia, have petitioned the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for a new hearing.

The court recently upheld their convictions and death sentences.

Emanuel Bloch, counsel for the condemned husband and wife, has renewed their battle to escape the electric chair. Bloch contended their trial was "unconstitutional" and that they were tried as "traitors."

He said they were "subjected to a treason prosecution, under the camouflage of a conspiracy to commit espionage charge, (and) were convicted without the constitutional safeguards afforded persons accused of treason."

Bloch said that as accused traitors the Rosenbergs "would not have been compelled to stake their lives on impeachable and loose evidence introduced in the dragnet of conspiracy prosecutions."

Rosenberg, 34, and his wife, 36, were convicted last March of conspiracy to commit espionage. They are now in the Sing Sing prison death house.

In This Freest Land, Military Censorship Eyed

Question Is: Where Does Security End And Coverup Of Varied Mistakes Begin

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of three articles concerning the vast amount of censorship of public information being imposed right here in the free-est land of all—and perhaps right in your own community.

NEW YORK, March 13—(AP)—Military censorship poses the question of where security ends and the coverup of mistakes begins, particularly on the home front.

Newspapers in their constant battle against unwarranted suppression of news have no quarrel with omitting news that jeopardizes the nation's security or the life of a single serviceman or civilian.

They demonstrated that during World War II by their careful adsorship.

It is when "security" is invoked to cover up something that appears to have no connection with security that friction arises.

* * *

HERE IS AN actual example of how military and newspaper thinking can conflict:

Suppose you are a sports fan and you turn to the baseball standings. You see this list:

New York. . . .
Chicago. . . .
Another Team. . . .
Philadelphia. . .

You might be inclined to wonder who "Another Team" is.

This was a problem confronting the sports editor of the Beloit (Wis.) Daily News.

He reported that the 10th Air Force Radar Station had decided to enter a team in the Central Wisconsin Baseball League, whereupon the commanding officer demanded that his nine be known simply as "Another Team."

The officer's idea, no doubt, was to conceal knowledge that the radar existed. The newspaper's position was that this hardly could be concealed because the station's antenna was easily visible to anybody in the area.

The Navy conceded recently that "too often newspapers are met with evasiveness, double-talk or outright refusal to cooperate." It sent a public relations newsletter to responsible officers reminding them that "the Navy belongs to the public" and urged them to give whenever possible "frank, honest answers to questions from newspapers and wire services."

The letter declared truth is the best policy "even when the truth hurts."

* * *

THE AIR FORCE changed its regulations on photographing air crashes this month after a campaign waged by James S. Pope, chairman of the American Society of Newspaper Editors' Freedom of Information Committee.

Pope was aroused by incidents of Air Force police prohibiting news photographers—sometimes by physical measures—from taking pictures of crashed planes on non-military property.

He argued Air Force regulations ignored civil authority and gave the military a fancied right to declare martial law on civilian territory. He contended this right could be granted only by civilian authorities.

The Air Force no longer "prohibits" the taking of pictures outside military reservations.

But if a photographer takes pictures of secret equipment and refused to surrender them, he will be warned that under federal law he can be fined $10,000 and imprisoned for 10 years. If he still refuses, the FBI will be called in.

When no secret equipment is exposed to view "consent will be given for the taking of photographs by civilian photographers" under the new regulations.

Pope contended the old regulations purported to give authority to military men to "forbid" photographs even when no secret items were involved.

* * *

HE STRESSED that "no newspaper wants to risk breaching military security" but that neither did they wish to see the military encroach upon civilian authority in the guise of security considerations where none existed.

Pope had become aroused on the subject when Air Force police seized film from a photographer's camera at a Minnesota crash scene.

Declaring no security was involved, he threatened a damage suit against the Air Force.

He made similar complaints when Air Force police "outrageously and with physical force" interfered with coverage of a crash near Portland, Ore., and when they "roughed up" photographers at Honolulu covering Gen. Douglas MacArthur's return from Japan.

An example of how officials and the press differ on what constitutes security cropped up at one of President Truman's recent press conferences.

A reporter wanted to know why maps showing atomic installations were hung on airport bulletin boards.

The President rebuked the reporter. He said such questions only attracted attention to the maps.

The maps are intended to guide pilots so they won't fly over such installations.

Was security jeopardized in hanging the maps on bulletin boards in the first place, or in asking how come?

It depends on the point of view. (Tomorrow: The President stirs a controversy).

TOSSED ABOUT by raging floodwaters, vehicles face every which way in Van Nuys, Cal. Mud and silt nine inches deep cover the street and sidewalks. No serious damage was reported. (International)

Convicted Pair Tries Again For New Trial

NEW YORK, March 13—(AP)—Atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, sentenced to die for plotting to transmit secrets to Russia, have petitioned the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for a new hearing.

The court recently upheld their convictions and death sentences.

Emanuel Bloch, counsel for the condemned husband and wife, has renewed their battle to escape the electric chair. Bloch contended their trial was "unconstitutional" and that they were tried as "traitors."

He said they were "subjected to a treason prosecution, under the camouflage of a conspiracy to commit espionage charge, (and) were convicted without the constitutional safeguards afforded persons accused of treason."

Bloch said that as accused traitors the Rosenbergs "would not have been compelled to stake their lives on impeachable and loose evidence introduced in the dragnet of conspiracy prosecutions."

Rosenberg, 34, and his wife, 36, were convicted last March of conspiracy to commit espionage. They are now in the Sing Sing prison death house.

IF THIS WERE A REAL atomic engine, Westinghouse reporter Robert B. Dollison would be too warm for comfort. The mock-up now touring the country shows graphically how an atomic engine would work. Power for the operation is generated in the pile at the left. Heat flows from the power source to a transfer tank where steam is generated and then carried through steam lines to the turbines in the center. Spent steam is condensed beneath the turbine on the right and returned to the original tank via the condensate pump. The demonstration features science show, "Energy in Action." (International)

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

Retention of more baby teeth means the preservation of more teeth in adults. Premature extraction of primary or baby teeth causes malformation of permanent teeth and other disorders, being responsible for at least 50 per cent of adult tooth trouble. So Dr. Harold R. Klein is reported to have said before the recent meeting of the New York Society of Dentistry for Children.

This assertion assumes that we parents should be greatly concerned about proper nutrition and care of the child's first teeth. It means proper nutrition of the mother during pregnancy as well as of the baby and young child. It means keeping these teeth properly cleaned and protected, especially against the inroads of sweets. It means early regular visits by the child to the dentist after the age of two or younger, and the following by parents of the dentist's counsel.

Dental surgeons have been warning mothers to keep excessive sweets from the youngster or make sure his teeth are cleansed right after he has eaten candies, cookies and the like.

• • •

SOME GRANDPARENTS can remember the days when a Dr. Wiley led a campaign through the various women's magazines against sweets for children, which was taken pretty seriously by young parents. Then there came a period when the popular impression prevailed, aided and abetted by potent advertising campaigns, that growing children should have considerable sugar. Admitting this need, leaders in nutrition urged that sugar was best made available in the supporting foods themselves rather than in its refined form sprinkled on foods or served in candies and other sweetmeats.

In the meanwhile, dental science has discovered that fluoridation of domestic water supplies is the most effective public health measure yet devised to curb the incidence of dental decay. In test cities, the procedure has reduced incidence of tooth decay among children as much as 50 or 60 per cent. Now the American Medical Association has announced approval of the process as nonpoisonous.

A total of 140 communities throughout the United States are now fluoridating their water systems, according to a news release from the American Dental Association. And scores of other cities, including San Francisco, Milwaukee and Washington, D. C., are making arrangements for placing this procedure into operation.

Q. WHY DO YOU SAY the tot beset with many fears should play freely with other children of his age. Won't they arouse more fears in him?

A. They may arouse a few but they help him see their indifference to what seems fearful to him. Furthermore, they help him feel more self-reliant physically and emotionally. (My bulletins on "Tot Learning To Be Sociable" and "Your Child and His Playmates" may be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper.)

Ex-Con Held In $1.5 Million Burglary Case

MILWAUKEE, March 13—(AP)—Andrew Robert Young, 46, an ex-convict, has been seized by FBI agents in connection with the theft of $1½ million from the home of a Reno millionaire two weeks ago.

The agents seized Young after tracing him through an attractive, dark-haired mystery woman who attempted to pass a $1,000 bill at a Reno gambling table.

After hours of questioning, during which Young denied taking part in the Feb. 29 burglary or even being in Reno at the time, he was taken before U. S. Commissioner Floyd B. Jenkins. Preliminary hearing on a charge of interstate transportation of stolen property was adjourned for a week pending arrival of a warrant from Reno. Young was held in jail in $50,000 bond. Nevada authorities said Young is accused of being involved in the burglary of the mansion of Laverne V. Redfield. Whether others were involved, federal authorities refused to say.

The FBI men who arrested Young said they found five $100 bills on him but none of the rest of the cash, securities and jewelry taken from the Reno millionaire.

MORRIS WINS SPECIAL PLAQUE

'Dink' Olney Is Selected As 'Most Valuable Player'

Don "Dink" Olney is Circleville's "most valuable player" of 1952.

The quiet, unassuming high school senior was named for the top award of the 1951-52 basketball season Wednesday during the annual Circleville Booster Club banquet in the high school.

And, due to the rigid secrecy in naming the lad as this year's MVP winner, none attending Wednesday's fete was more surprised by the selection than Olney himself.

Although lacking the flash and glitter of the cage "star," Olney was named for the coveted Booster trophy for his steady reliability on the court; his attitude toward the game of basketball; his cooperation with teammates; and regularity to practices.

• • •

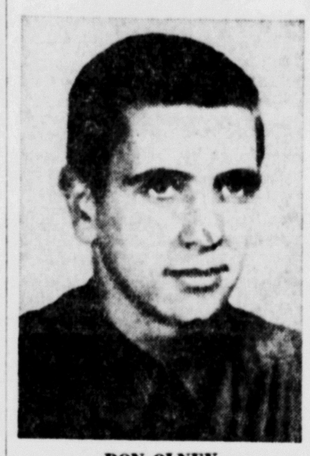
RANKING FIFTH among scorers on this year's Red and Black team, Olney was not considered in the running for the award by many local fans.

It was his background work, however, which made him the likely choice for the trophy; his ability to be where he was needed most.

This year's MVP winner is 17, youngest of four children of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Olney, South Washington street.

In addition to his basketball work, Olney is a member of Circleville's state championship golf team and an avid fisherman.

The MVP winner has played at basketball since he was in junior high school. He is enrolled in commercial studies in high school, an average student, and has been selected as honorary captain of this year's Tiger cage team.



DON OLNEY

Prior winners of the Booster Club's MVP awards were Bob Steele, 1947; Bob Eccard, who was overcome by gas fumes while attending OSU, 1948; Jack Young, 1949; Don Cook, 1950; and Jerry Pritchard, 1951.

Also given special recognition during Wednesday's program was Dudley Morris, southpaw marksman, who won the Booster plaque for free-throwing artistry.

• • •

MORRIS WAS awarded the free-throw plaque for having completed more than 68 percent of his attempted charity tosses during the season. The plaque was presented by Cecil Andrews.

Guest speaker for the annual Booster fete was Paul "Bucky" Walters, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Walters of 111 East Water street and coach of the 1951 state championship Columbus East basketball team.

Walters spoke of incidents which he experienced while attending Circleville high school as a star athlete, while winding up his address with a shot at the parents who neglect their youngsters.

The East high coach pointed out that parents are responsible for the young people today, their tendencies toward bad habits and how the parents could help their youngsters by taking a more active interest in their affairs.

Entertainment for the informal Booster banquet was presented by the "Happy Four" quartet of Morris EUB church.

Players of the various cage squads honored during the Wednesday banquet were introduced by their coaches.

Coach Steve Brudzinski, in introducing his reserve Tiger team, delivered a blast at city youngsters who, on the borderline in their school work, fail to study to keep up their eligibility.

• • •

CIRCLEVILLE'S varsity cagers were introduced by Tom Bennett, while the junior high youngsters were introduced by Al Gabriel.

Junior clubs from Wayne and Washington Township schools, with youngsters due to enter the Circleville school in their freshman years, were introduced by George Mallet and Oakley Leist respectively.

Booster Club President Wendell Turner made presentation of the MVP award to Olney, while announcing that an "all-sports" picnic is planned by the Club for late Spring.

Carter's Win Is Protested By Rawlings

CHICAGO, March 13—(AP)—Lightweight champion Jimmy Carter registered a non-title victory over top challenger Luther Rawlings Wednesday night on a split decision. Both judges voted for Carter but the referee voted against him.

Rawlings protested the verdict.

"It was the easiest fight I ever had," he stormed. "The judges were watching Carter too much. They weren't watching me at all."

Referee Norman McGarity's vote which gave the fight to Rawlings, 52-48, was the only sensible one of the three, the Chicago contender claimed. Rawlings was rated the No. 1 challenger for Carter's lightweight crown, and his disappointment at failing to set up a shot at the crown in a title fight was obvious.

"It was a 'bonus' decision for Carter," he declared. "The government gives bonuses to soldier veterans and the judges did the same thing for Carter."

'Hot Shots' Win By 73-51

Grover's "Hot Shots" basketball team chalked up a lopsided 73-51 victory over Clarksburg Ranger cagers Wednesday night in Clarksburg.

The local aggregation was on the short end of a 30-29 count at the half, although romping into the 22-point victory in a second-half drive.

Pacing the "Hot Shots" was Jack Young, who netted 29 counters. Clarksburg's Noble paced the losers with 20.

Two Gaits Buys French Trotter

INDIANAPOLIS, March 13—(AP)—Leo C. McNamara, owner of Two Gaits Farm, has purchased Quel Veinard, French trotting stallion, from Gabriel Moreau, Paris moving picture theater magnate.

Quel Veinard is the first foreign-bred harness horse ever to be imported into the United States for either breeding purposes or racing. The purchase price was not disclosed, but is known to be in five figures. McNamara said the 14-year-old horse would remain in France until July 1 and then will be flown directly to Indianapolis.

Bookie Is Peeved At Government

BALTIMORE, March 13 — (AP)—Howard Sports Daily, Inc., racing wire service described by Senate crime probers as one of the "dummies" for Continental Press, is out of business.

Harry Bilson, manager of Howard Service, which has been doing business since 1935, confirmed it had closed shop. When asked why, he replied:

"You know what the government is doing in Washington, don't you? "They all have lily white hands there, you know."

Wittenberg Star Tops '52 Ohio Loop '5'

COLUMBUS, March 13 — (AP)—Three seniors and two juniors have been designated by Ohio Conference coaches as the top basketball stars of that 14-college loop.

The five, from five, different schools, were awarded first place berths on the 1952 Associated Press all-conference team.

Hugh "Perk" Robins of Wittenberg's fifth-placers was selected as the loop's outstanding center, 10 of the 13 coaches who voted placing him on the first team. Three had him on the second.

Robins, a 6-2 senior from Louisville, Ky., is 21 years old and weighs 180. He garnered 401 points in 21 games and 833 in three seasonsboth Wittenberg records. He plans to play professional baseball.

The forward positions went to Paul Bernlohr, Capital Junior, and Bob Coverdale, Ohio Wesleyan senior. Don Simon, Muskingum senior, and junior Jack Holt of Wooster's undefeated league champions, grabbed the guard berths.

NIT Semifinals Being Awaited

NEW YORK, March 13 — (AP)—Mighty Duquesne tests its 22-1 record against LaSalle's giant-killing explorers in the semifinal round of the National Invitation Basketball Tournament in Madison Square Garden Thursday night.

Dayton, 26-3, surprise runnerup last year, meets third seeded St. Bonaventure, 20-5, in the other semifinal. The two winners will go into Saturday's final with the losers meeting for third place.

Santa Anita Set For Sidewheelers

ARCADIA, Calif., March 13—(AP)—The pacers and trotters take over at Santa Anita Park Friday when many of the nation's leading horses launch a 40-day meeting for the Western Harness Racing Association and the $600,000 purse money posted for the season.

There will be 24 stakes offered, aggregating more than $200,000 in value.

MORRIS WINS SPECIAL PLAQUE

'Dink' Olney Is Selected As 'Most Valuable Player'

Don "Dink" Olney is Circleville's "most valuable player" of 1952.

The quiet, unassuming high school senior was named for the top award of the 1951-52 basketball season Wednesday during the annual Circleville Booster Club banquet in the high school.

And, due to the rigid secrecy in naming the lad as this year's MVP winner, none attending Wednesday's fete was more surprised by the selection than Olney himself.

Although lacking the flash and glitter of the cage "star," Olney was named for the coveted Booster trophy for his steady reliability on the court; his attitude toward the game of basketball; his cooperation with teammates; and regularity to practices.

• • •

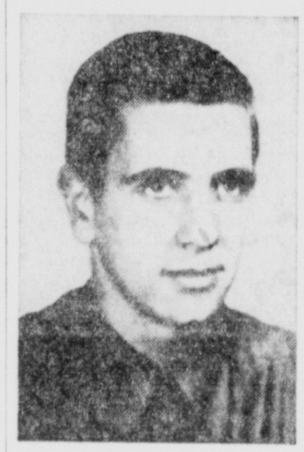
RANKING FIFTH among scorers on this year's Red and Black team, Olney was not considered in the running for the award by many local fans.

It was his background work, however, which made him the likely choice for the trophy; his ability to be where he was needed most.

This year's MVP winner is 17, youngest of four children of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Olney, South Washington street.

In addition to his basketball work, Olney is a member of Circleville's state championship golf team and an avid fisherman.

The MVP winner has played at basketball since he was in junior high school. He is enrolled in commercial studies in high school, an average student, and has been selected as honorary captain of this year's Tiger cage team.



DON OLNEY

Prior winners of the Booster Club's MVP awards were Bob Steele, 1947; Bob Eccard, who was overcome by gas fumes while attending OSU, 1948; Jack Young, 1949; Don Cook, 1950; and Jerry Pritchard, 1951.

Also given special recognition during Wednesday's program was Dudley Morris, southpaw marksman, who won the Booster plaque for free-throwing artistry.

• • •

MORRIS WAS awarded the free-throw plaque for having completed more than 68 percent of his attempted charity tosses during the season. The plaque was presented by Cecil Andrews.

Guest speaker for the annual Booster fete was Paul "Bucky" Walters, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Walters of 111 East Water street and coach of the 1951 state championship Columbus East basketball team.

Walters spoke of incidents which he experienced while attending Circleville high school as a star athlete, while winding up his address with a shot at the parents who neglect their youngsters.

The East high coach pointed out that parents are responsible for the young people today, their tendencies toward bad habits and how the parents could help their youngsters by taking a more active interest in their affairs.

Entertainment for the informal Booster banquet was presented by the "Happy Four" quartet of Morris EUB church.

Players of the various cage squads honored during the Wednesday banquet were introduced by their coaches.

Coach Steve Brudzinski, in introducing his reserve Tiger team, delivered a blast at city youngsters who, on the borderline in their school work, fail to study to keep up their eligibility.

• • •

CIRCLEVILLE'S varsity cagers were introduced by Tom Bennett, while the junior high youngsters were introduced by Al Gabriel.

Junior clubs from Wayne and Washington Township schools, with youngsters due to enter the Circleville school in their freshman years, were introduced by George Mallet and Oakley Leist respectively.

Booster Club President Wendell Turner made presentation of the MVP award to Olney, while announcing that an "all-sports" picnic is planned by the Club for late Spring.

Carter's Win Is Protested By Rawlings

CHICAGO, March 13—(AP)—Lightweight champion Jimmy Carter registered a non-title victory over top challenger Luther Rawlings Wednesday night on a split decision. Both judges voted for Carter but the referee voted against him.

Rawlings protested the verdict.

"It was the easiest fight I ever had," he stormed. "The judges were watching Carter too much. They weren't watching me at all."

Referee Norman McGarity's vote which gave the fight to Rawlings, 52-48, was the only sensible one of the three, the Chicago contender claimed. Rawlings was rated the No. 1 challenger for Carter's lightweight crown, and his disappointment at failing to set up a shot at the crown in a title fight was obvious.

"It was a 'bonus' decision for Carter," he declared. "The government gives bonuses to soldier veterans and the judges did the same thing for Carter."

'Hot Shots' Win By 73-51

Grover's "Hot Shots" basketball team chalked up a lopsided 73-51 victory over Clarksburg Ranger cagers Wednesday night in Clarksburg.

The local aggregation was on the short end of a 30-29 count at the half, although romping into the 22-point victory in a second-half drive.

Pacing the "Hot Shots" was Jack Young, who netted 29 counters. Clarksburg's Noble paced the losers with 20.

Two Gaits Buys French Trotter

INDIANAPOLIS, March 13—(AP)—Leo C. McNamara, owner of Two Gaits Farm, has purchased Quel Veinard, French trotting stallion, from Gabriel Moreau, Paris moving picture theater magnate.

Quel Veinard is the first foreign-bred harness horse ever to be imported into the United States for either breeding purposes or racing. The purchase price was not disclosed, but is known to be in five figures. McNamara said the 14-year-old horse would remain in France until July 1 and then will be flown directly to Indianapolis.

Bookie Is Peeved At Government

BALTIMORE, March 13 — (AP)—Howard Sports Daily, Inc., racing wire service described by Senate crime probers as one of the "dummies" for Continental Press, is out of business.

Harry Bilson, manager of Howard Service, which has been doing business since 1935, confirmed it had closed shop. When asked why, he replied:

"You know what the government is doing in Washington, don't you? "They all have lily white hands there, you know."

Wittenberg Star Tops '52 Ohio Loop '5'

COLUMBUS, March 13 — (AP)—Three seniors and two juniors have been designated by Ohio Conference coaches as the top basketball stars of that 14-college loop.

The five, from five, different schools, were awarded first place berths on the 1952 Associated Press all-conference team.

Hugh "Perk" Robins of Wittenberg's fifth-placers was selected as the loop's outstanding center, 10 of the 13 coaches who voted placing him on the first team. Three had him on the second.

Robins, a 6-2 senior from Louisville, Ky., is 21 years old and weighs 180. He garnered 401 points in 21 games and 833 in three seasonsboth Wittenberg records. He plans to play professional baseball.

The forward positions went to Paul Bernlohr, Capital Junior, and Bob Coverdale, Ohio Wesleyan senior. Don Simon, Muskingum senior, and junior Jack Holt of Wooster's undefeated league champions, grabbed the guard berths.

NIT Semifinals Being Awaited

NEW YORK, March 13 — (AP)—Mighty Duquesne tests its 22-1 record against LaSalle's giant-killing explorers in the semifinal round of the National Invitation Basketball Tournament in Madison Square Garden Thursday night.

Dayton, 26-3, surprise runnerup last year, meets third seeded St. Bonaventure, 20-5, in the other semifinal. The two winners will go into Saturday's final with the losers meeting for third place.

Santa Anita Set For Sidewheelers

ARCADIA, Calif., March 13—(AP)—The pacers and trotters take over at Santa Anita Park Friday when many of the nation's leading horses launch a 40-day meeting for the Western Harness Racing Association and the $600,000 purse money posted for the season.

There will be 24 stakes offered, aggregating more than $200,000 in value.

Cubs Look Like Sure Bet To Lose Pennant

PHOENIX, March 13 — (AP)—If there is any team in the National League that looks like a sure bet not to win the pennant, it is the Chicago Cubs. But Phil Cavaretta, a mild-mannered fellow who is serving his second term as Bruin manager, isn't giving up—at least not yet.

At this early stage of the campaign, Cavaretta already has one "first" to his credit. He's the first major league manager to blast his squad for taking it easy. He's also the first to do something about it—and with the exhibition season hardly a week old.

Phil didn't like the way his team went down before the New York Giants Monday, and told the players so in no uncertain terms. Then he made up a new outfield combination of Jack Wallaesa, Bob Addis and Gene Hermanski.

One game does not make a season, of course, but Phil's strategy worked here Wednesday to the extent that the hapless Cubs, who have been consigned to the senior circuit cellar by the critics, whomped the National League Champion Giants, 10-2.

• • •

THE VICTORY was particularly gratifying to Cavaretta since Leo Durocher had most of his first-stringers in the lineup. Even Jim Hearn and Sheldon Jones, a couple of the Giants' ace hurlers, saw action. Addis and Hermanski didn't get any hits, but Wallaesa collected three, and Dee Fondy, who has been up before, slapped out four singles.

There was little joy around the Cincinnati Reds' spring training base in Tampa.

The Redlegs lost a 7 to 5 ball game to the Boston Braves Wednesday, but here were just a couple of the things that added gray hairs to the head of Manager Luke Sewell:

Catcher Andy Seminick and Third Baseman Bobby Adams cut loose with wild throws—two by Seminick—that aided the Braves immeasurably; Sewell had memories of last year when he saw Bob Borkowski and Hank Edwards let a high fly by Jack Cusick fall for a double.

About the only cheering note as the Reds moved to St. Petersburg for a game with the St. Louis Cardinals was the pitching of Herman Wehmeier. "Hermie" allowed one run on a couple of fluke hits but never was hurt after that in four frames.

• • •

IN ST. PETERSBURG, the New York Yankees were minus one infielder—and a mighty important one. Young Billy Martin, who was slated to fill in at both second and third base, sustained two broken bones in his right ankle Wednesday sliding into second for the benefit of a cameraman. He probably won't be able to play until May.

Even without the services of the 22-year-old Martin, the Yankees had no trouble crushing the Detroit Tigers, 4-1.

In Sarasota, the Boston Red Sox plan to use rookie pitchers again Thursday in an effort to end their victory famine in the exhibition circuit against the Washington Senators.

Lou Boudreau has named Jim Atkins, Rolly Schuster and Al Schroll to hurl against the Nats. The Sockers now have dropped four in a row, including Wednesday's marathon 15-inning loss to the St. Louis Cards, 7-6.

It'll be veteran lefty Warren Spahn and rookies Virgil Jester and Murray Wall pitching for the Braves Thursday when they travel to the Lakeland haunts of the Tigers.

The Tribe's exhibition record is 3-2 after Wednesday's 7-5 verdict over Cincinnati.

• • •

PENNANT -anxious Cleveland planned to give the oft-discussed trick knee of First Baseman Luke Easter its first workout of the season under game conditions Thursday.

Big Luke, who thinks he'll hit 40 homers, if the knee holds up, has looked pretty spry since he took the brace off last week.

A double fracture of the right leg has sidelined outfielder-third baseman Vern Benson of the St. Louis Cardinals. He was injured Wednesday as the Cards defeated the Boston Red Sox, 7-6.

OSU Baseballers Off For Texas

COLUMBUS, March 13 — (AP)—Ohio State University's baseball team was to leave Thursday for its annual southwestern spring training tour.

The defending Big Ten champions play at the University of Houston, Tex., Friday and Saturday. Next week they will play at Brooke Medical Center, San Antonio, and at Texas A & M.

Highest lake in the United States is California's Lake Tulainyo, which has an elevation of 12,865 feet.

Sokolsky's

These Days

May I criticize your letter to your children for one thing? You say:

"My Children, as long as you live, the shadow of the Hiss Case will brush you. In every pair of eyes that rests on you, you will see pass, like a cloud passing behind a woods in winter, the memory of your father—dissembled in friendly eyes, lurking in unfriendly eyes. . ."

This, I am sure, will not be so. The day will surely come, Whit, when all men will recognize what you have done.

The other day, I was asked why no one writes a biography of another American hero, William Wirt, the educator of Gary, Indiana, who was ridiculed to his grave for speaking the truth. It was good to know that Dr. Wirt is not forgotten.

Your conversion from Marx to God, your service to your country by confession of error, by penitence in action, by risking the peace of yourself and your family when you might have found safety in oblivion—these services will ot be forgotten.

And your children, when they are mature, will not be ashamed.

THE VICTORY was particularly gratifying to Cavaretta since Leo Durocher had most of his first-stringers in the lineup. Even Jim Hearn and Sheldon Jones, a couple of the Giants' ace hurlers, saw action. Addis and Hermanski didn't get any hits, but Wallaesa collected three, and Dee Fondy, who has been up before, slapped out four singles.

There was little joy around the Cincinnati Reds' spring training base in Tampa.

The Redlegs lost a 7 to 5 ball game to the Boston Braves Wednesday, but here were just a couple of the things that added gray hairs to the head of Manager Luke Sewell:

Catcher Andy Seminick and Third Baseman Bobby Adams cut loose with wild throws—two by Seminick—that aided the Braves immeasurably; Sewell had memories of last year when he saw Bob Borkowski and Hank Edwards let a high fly by Jack Cusick fall for a double.

About the only cheering note as the Reds moved to St. Petersburg for a game with the St. Louis Cardinals was the pitching of Herman Wehmeier. "Hermie" allowed one run on a couple of fluke hits but never was hurt after that in four frames.

* * *

IN ST. PETERSBURG, the New York Yankees were minus one infielder—and a mighty important one. Young Billy Martin, who was slated to fill in at both second and third base, sustained two broken bones in his right ankle Wednesday sliding into second for the benefit of a cameraman. He probably won't be able to play until May.

Even without the services of the 22-year-old Martin, the Yankees had no trouble crushing the Detroit Tigers, 4-1.

In Sarasota, the Boston Red Sox plan to use rookie pitchers again Thursday in an effort to end their victory famine in the exhibition circuit against the Washington Senators.

Lou Boudreau has named Jim Atkins, Rolly Schuster and Al Schroll to hurl against the Nats. The Sockers now have dropped four in a row, including Wednesday's marathon 15-inning loss to the St. Louis Cards, 7-6.

It'll be veteran lefty Warren Spahn and rookies Virgil Jester and Murray Wall pitching for the Braves Thursday when they travel to the Lakeland haunts of the Tigers.

The Tribe's exhibition record is 3-2 after Wednesday's 7-5 verdict over Cincinnati.

* * *

PENNANT -anxious Cleveland planned to give the oft-discussed trick knee of First Baseman Luke Easter its first workout of the season under game conditions Thursday.

Big Luke, who thinks he'll hit 40 homers, if the knee holds up, has looked pretty spry since he took the brace off last week.

A double fracture of the right leg has sidelined outfielder-third baseman Vern Benson of the St. Louis Cardinals. He was injured Wednesday as the Cards defeated the Boston Red Sox, 7-6.

Sokolsky's

These Days

May I criticize your letter to your children for one thing? You say:

"My Children, as long as you live, the shadow of the Hiss Case will brush you. In every pair of eyes that rests on you, you will see pass, like a cloud passing behind a woods in winter, the memory of your father—dissembled in friendly eyes, lurking in unfriendly eyes. . ."

This, I am sure, will not be so. The day will surely come, Whit, when all men will recognize what you have done.

The other day, I was asked why no one writes a biography of another American hero, William Wirt, the educator of Gary, Indiana, who was ridiculed to his grave for speaking the truth. It was good to know that Dr. Wirt is not forgotten.

Your conversion from Marx to God, your service to your country by confession of error, by penitence in action, by risking the peace of yourself and your family when you might have found safety in oblivion —these services will ot be forgotten.

And your children, when they are mature, will not be ashamed.

Cure For Warts: Pincerless Crab Or Spawn Of Toad

By MRS. JEANNE BACH
Herald Staff Writer

In any field of science, 124 years would make a vast difference. This was greatly in evidence in a book recently found by Mrs. Etta Bach of Circleville Route 2 in the attic of her home.

The book, now the property of her son, Edwin Bach, of South Court street, is called "The Indian Physician," written by Dr. Jonas Rishel and printed in 1828 in New Berlin, Pa., by Joseph Miller.

The yellowed pages of the book are hand sewn and bound and the title page contains the following information as to the contents of the book:

"A new system of practice founded on medical plants, together with a description of their properties, localities and method of using and preparing them. A Treatise on the causes and symptoms of diseases, which are incident to human nature, with a safe and sovereign cure for them and the mode of treatment in any stage of disease. For the use of families and practitioners of medicine."

• • •

ALTHOUGH DR. Rishel was probably just a self-proclaimed doctor as evidenced by the title of the book and from other references made in the book, his text shows an extensive knowledge of the human body and he is very eloquent in his speech.

In his preface, he tries to explain his practice of herbal healing in part as follows: "The author of the Indian Physician having through a series of many years practice of physic, viewed with remorse, the many inconveniences under which the human family has to labour; both as respects the means of procuring medical aid and the inattentiveness of many who profess to prescribe aid to the sick;—considers it a duty which he owes to himself and to his fellow man to submit the present theory of the practice of Physic to the public."

The ancient book is complete with certificates from persons who claim to have been cured by him, a list of herbs and the proper way in which to prepare the so-called "decoctions."

Although some of the cures he recommends would probably be much worse than the original ailment, it must be remembered that herbs are still widely used in medicines, and maybe some of the treatments weren't so far off—who knows?

However, to make hair grow Dr. Rishel recommends the following:

"Take peach meats, pound them fine, (one gill,) and a pint of vinegar, put the peach meats and vinegar, together into a bottle; wash the place where the hair has fallen off, three times a day, and it will soon grow.—Proved".

• • •

FOR A WART the treatment is as follows: "Take a lobster, (fresh-water crab;) pull off the pincers and tie it on the wart with the back downwards; so repeat for three days leaving it on all day. A toad, or the spawn of a toad, will do the same.—Proved".

A cure for scrofula, or old sores, consists of tar, one gill; sheeps tallow, one gill; and a tablespoonful of brick dust. Melt, mix together and apply as a common salve.

To cure the bite of a mad dog, a mixture of red henbane, two quarts of good beer and two drachms (old usage for drams) theriach were boiled and strained.

This mixture was prescribed for horses, cows and man to be taken internally and also to apply to the wound externally.

The practice of blood-letting, which at one time was considered very helpful in many ailments and at that time still used by some, was denounced by Dr. Rishel.

He comments, "Many melancholy cases are admitted into our hospitals in consequence of the ignorance of the operator, either by wounding a tendon or puncturing an artery."

The practice was frequently performed by farriers and barbers.

He describes a mouth canker as an acrid humour. It is interesting to note that in old physiology the humours were four fluids, blood, phlegm, choler (yellow bile), and melancholy (black bile).

• • •

THESE WERE conceived as entering into the body and determining, by their proportions, a person's health and temperament.

His cures cover everything from "hystericks" and indigestion to jaundice and mumps.

What he describes as nerve ointment consists of, "Bittersweet, the bark of the roots; pellitory of the wall; and mullien flowers; one pound each, all fresh—bruise them and add one gallon of bear's oil, or any other soft oil; simmer the whole in an earthen or iron vessel six hours, over a slow fire; then strain off; add one pint of spirits of turpentine and keep it close corked for use. To be applied to sprains, bruises and contracted tendons.

"To know for certain if a person has a tapeworm, take a small hickory nut shell, fill it with paste made of wheat flour and milk, close the shell and tie in the naval overnight.

"If the person has tapeworms, the paste will be gone when the shell is taken off in the morning; then take white glass, pulverize it very fine, mix it with the paste and tie it on as before. This will weaken the worm, then give plentifully of a tea of the bark of white oak, rock oak and shumake and at the same time give a teaspoonful of spirits of turpentine twice a day."

Obviously, these methods would not be recommended by the Circleville Medical Association today. However, these treatments were the only ones many people had at that time.

Pickaway Countians probably practiced them, since this county was formed in 1810, at which time Circleville was named its county seat.

After a glimpse at the practices of that day and then reviewing the miracles of today, small wonder modern man's life expectancy is greater than that of his great grandparents.

CHAINS CONFINE Daniel W. Beardsley, 36, to his hospital bed in Detroit following his slaying of his wife. Police said that Beardsley beat his wife to death with an auto jack as she left work, jumped into her car to escape, but crashed into another car as he raced down the street on the wrong side. The second driver, Edward Baiscla, 45, was critically injured.

Rail Net Drops

WASHINGTON, March 13—(AP)—The Association of American Railroads estimates the net income of class one rail systems during January at $42 million compared with a net of $57 million in January, 1951.

Ohio Attorney Gives Rule On Write-In Vote

COLUMBUS, March 13 — (AP)—Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill has ruled that write-in nomination is required of candidates to fill the unexpired term of an elective official who dies less than 70 days before the primary.

But unless the write-in candidate receives at least 15 per cent of the total vote, the controlling party committee may select a candidate for the November election voting, O'Neill held.

The opinion went to Prosecutor Darrell R. Hottle of Highland County where County Treasurer Joe Gavey died 66 days before the primary.

O'Neill said the opinion also is applicable to filling a vacancy in the Third District Appellate Court. Appellate Judge Walter S. Jackson of Lima died 69 days before the May 6 primary. Gov. Frank J. Lausche appointed Common Pleas Judge Clarence U. Ahl of Bucyrus to serve on the appellate bench until a successor to Judge Jackson is elected and qualified this year. The term expires in 1955.

The Highland County treasurer was unopposed for renomination for a full term by both parties. The nominations for a full term must be made by write-in, but he said that if no write-in candidate receives 15 percent of the party vote another write-in must be held in November for the full term.

COLUMBUS, March 13—(AP)—Columbus residents were alerted Wednesday night by a strange object in the sky, usually was described as a colored streak of flame headed north. Officials at airports figure it was the vapor trail of an airplane.

Pickaway Countians probably practiced them, since this county was formed in 1810, at which time Circleville was named its county seat.

After a glimpse at the practices of that day and then reviewing the miracles of today, small wonder modern man's life expectancy is greater than that of his great grandparents.

CHAINS CONFINE Daniel W. Beardsley, 36, to his hospital bed in Detroit following his slaying of his wife. Police said that Beardsley beat his wife to death with an auto jack as she left work, jumped into her car to escape, but crashed into another car as he raced down the street on the wrong side. The second driver, Edward Baiscla, 45, was critically injured.

Ohio Attorney Gives Rule On Write-In Vote

COLUMBUS, March 13 — (AP)—Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill has ruled that write-in nomination is required of candidates to fill the unexpired term of an elective official who dies less than 70 days before the primary.

But unless the write-in candidate receives at least 15 per cent of the total vote, the controlling party committee may select a candidate for the November election voting, O'Neill held.

The opinion went to Prosecutor Darrell R. Hottle of Highland County where County Treasurer Joe Gavey died 66 days before the primary.

O'Neill said the opinion also is applicable to filling a vacancy in the Third District Appellate Court. Appellate Judge Walter S. Jackson of Lima died 69 days before the May 6 primary. Gov. Frank J. Lausche appointed Common Pleas Judge Clarence U. Ahl of Bucyrus to serve on the appellate bench until a successor to Judge Jackson is elected and qualified this year. The term expires in 1955.

The Highland County treasurer was unopposed for renomination for a full term by both parties. The nominations for a full term must be made by write-in, but he said that if no write-in candidate receives 15 percent of the party vote another write-in must be held in November for the full term.
